ACCIDENTAL DEATH IS THE JURY FINDING

Inquest Held To-day Over
Body of Douglas Peterson,
Bank Teller

Found Dead in Room Over
Bank Premises; Accounts
in Order

Accidental death was the verdict brought in by the coroner's jury this morning investigating the death of Douglas Peterson, teller of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, corner of Oak Bay Avenue and Foul Bay Road, who was found dead in a room above the bank on Saturday morning with a bullet wound in his head.

The inquest was held at the B.C. Funeral Parlors with Coroner E. C. Hart in charge.

Sarah Short, janitress at the bank, said the teller arrived at the bank at 8.25 o'clock, which was exceptionally early for him. Proceeding to the teller's cage he hung up his coat and then went across to the corner store to see if the mail had arrived. Coming back he entered the cage and then went to the quarters above the bank. Shortly after witness declared she heard a noise. Going upstairs she saw Peterson lying stretched out on the floor in a bedroom with a bullet wound in his head.

Rushing downstairs she called to a passerby to summon the police.

ASKED FOR LOAN

John Jones, proprietor of a store opposite the bank stated that Peterson went to his shop every morning to pick up the bank's mail. Last Saturday he asked for the mail but it had not arrived.

"Mr. Jones you have done me many a favor and I would like you to do me one," Peterson said.

ACCIDENTS TAKE NINETEEN LIVES

Heavy Deathlist in Montreal
District Over Week-end Is Reported

Montreal, July 23.—Following a check at the morgue to-day, the deathlist for week-end accidents in Montreal was found to amount to nineteen. Eight lives were claimed in level rail-road crossing accidents, eight were drowned, two were killed when a picnic truck crashed into a train car, and a child lost its life when it fell from an upper balcony at its parents' home.

FAMILY WIPED OUT

An entire family was wiped out at Point aux Trembles when an automobile in which its members were riding stalled on the tracks at a Canadian National crossing.

Four persons were killed near Cap St. Martin, about fifteen miles from here when their automobile was struck by an inbound Canadian Pacific Ottawa train. The dead included three members of one family.

ITALIANS PLAN NOBLE INQUIRY

Mussolini Will Not Countenance
Italy Investigation
By Any Other Nation

Oso, Norway, July 23.—The Italian Legation here received a telegram to-day stating the base ship Citta Di Milano had left King's Bay, Spitzbergen, for Narvik, Norway, with the survivors of the lost North Pole dirigible Italia.

MUSSOLINI SPEAKS

Rome, July 23.—Premier Mussolini told the Council of Ministers to-day that a complete investigation into all phases of the dirigible disaster would be made by Italy, and that any other proposed investigation would be immediately rejected.

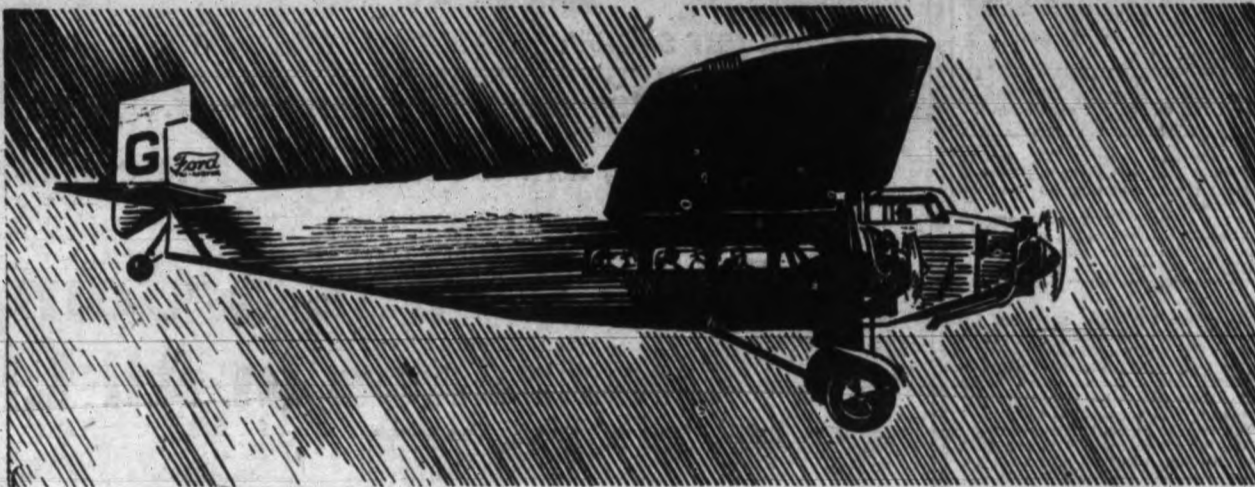

The many utterances about the expedition, the Premier said, recalled "the miserable slanders of war-time who, in safety and without a shade of shame, spoke ill of how the battle had fared."

Toronto, July 23.—A special cable from Amsterdam to The Toronto Star says Joe Wright and Jack Guest, Toronto scullers, to-day broke the world double scull record for 2,000 metres, made in 1920 by Kelly and Costello at the Antwerp Olympiad. The Canadians clipped five seconds from the record,

ISLAND BOARDS MEET TUESDAY

Many Resolutions Drafted
For Convention Discussion

Seventeen resolutions from Victoria and neighboring districts, will go before the convention of the Associated Island Boards of Trade when that body goes into session at Qualicum Beach to-morrow for a two-day business conference.

Vancouver Island's highways will be one of the main topics discussed. The Alberni-Cumberland road, and the continuation of the coast route from Sprat Lake through to the existing roads of Barkley Sound, and a road to give access to Stratton's Park, will be considered. These are of paramount importance, delegates feel, in view of the fact that the West Coast Road is already under construction from Jordan River to Port Renfrew.

WANT DUMP DUTY

The question of tariff on vegetables imported into British Columbia from the United States will probably be another subject of discussion. A resolution calls for an Order-in-Council to place a duty on vegetables and fruit coming into this Province in competition with local produce.

The protection of the coast salmon fisheries and of the stock of trout in island lakes, within the Equatorial and Nanaimo Railway belt, made into a national park. This stretch of country, rich in scenic attractions and commanding a position among recreation fields, the highest order, has long been desired as a park.

The Victoria delegation to the convention will leave this afternoon.

Rev. Montague Bruce, president of the Associated Boards, will deliver the opening address at the convention.

WILL TAKE TIME

In country ridings it may take only a day to finish the work of counting the ballots, but in Vancouver and Victoria at least four or five days will be required. After that, however, ten days must elapse before returning officers can report the final figures to the Provincial Secretary's Department. This will bring the date of the final official record of the poll near to the end of August. The Government, of course, has no intention of remaining in office until that time, but it feels that it should wait until the count is under way so that the business of resigning and making way for the new ministry may be carried out in an orderly and deliberate way.

Entries Already Filed Assure
City of Splendid Exhibition

Twenty-four sections in the Provincial Exhibition, which is to be held at the Willows from August 30 to 25, promise a programme of wider scope for competition and of greater interest to spectators than any previous show held there.

Stock, poultry, sheep, swine and horses will be on exhibition as usual along with smaller animals. Agricultural and horticultural entrants will lend color to the show. In addition to these features, sections are reserved for art displays, women's department, school exhibits and manufacturers' products.

In the catalogue recently issued to give detailed information regarding the various competitions, a complete list of prizes and rules governing the show are to be found, as well as a list of the officials presiding over the competitions.

HORSE SHOW INTERESTING

As usual great interest is being taken in the horse show department. This year 129 competitors are to be held in connection with this section. Cattle are to be graded in 242 classes under Horta, Island of Fayal, Azores, July 23.—The French seaplane La Fregate (the frigate bird) arrived here this morning from Brest, France, completing the first leg of a proposed flight to New York by way of the Azores and Bermuda.

With Naval Lieutenant Paulin Paris in command, the plane came down on the ungrazed surface of the harbor at 7.30 a.m. (11.30 o'clock last night Victoria time). It was a bright, sunny morning, and there was no wind.

Lieut. Paris and his companions, Releff Pilot Merrot and Wireless Operator Cado, completed the flight of some 1,600 miles in fifteen hours and fifteen minutes.

ARMY GROUPS FIGHT AT CHEFOO

Chinese Nationalist Flag
Hauled Down and Northern
Flag Hoisted

Chefoo, China, July 23.—The recently hoisted Sun banner of the Chinese Nationalists was hauled down here to-day and the five-barred flag of Northern China was put up. The Nationalist military commander took refuge aboard a British vessel bound for Shanghai. His soldiers were disbanded.

These developments came after seven days of fighting which started at midnight between the Nationalist troops here and 5,000 soldiers who had served under Chang Tung-chang, military governor of Shantung.

CHANGED AGAIN

The Chang Tung-chang men recently had been incorporated in the Nationalist army, but they renounced their new allegiance and gained control of the city.

While fighting was in progress foreign warships landed patrols and one United States sailor was wounded in the hand by a stray bullet.

DEFENCES ERECTED

The fighting lasted eighteen hours. It ceased by evening, but the foreign quarter is in a complete state of defence and the precautions will be continued lest renewed disturbances break out.

WORLD TRAVEL RECORD IS SET

Mears and Collyer Circle the Globe in 23 Days 15 Hours
21 Minutes

The new round-the-world travel speed record is twenty-three days fifteen hours, twenty-one minutes and three seconds. John Henry Mears and Pilot Charles B. D. Collyer, who arrived in Victoria from the Orient on the liner Empress of Russia Friday night and left by plane for the east early Saturday morning, set up that mark when they arrived at the Battery in New York at 8.31 o'clock last evening.

The success of the two daring travelers in their effort to break the Wells-Evans world record is told in the following dispatch from New York:

New York, July 23.—John Henry Mears and B. D. Collyer landed at the Battery here at 8.31 o'clock last night, thereby establishing a record of 23 days, 15 hours, 21 minutes and 3 seconds for a trip around the world. This previous record, held by Linton Wells and Edward Evans, New York newspapermen, was 28 days, 14 hours, 36 minutes and 5 seconds.

A crowd of several thousand persons greeted the fliers as they brought their plane to a stop at the Staten Island field. Newspaper photographers went into action and flashlights beamed in the dim light of an overcast sky to give a record of the landing.

An automobile and a squad of motorcycle policemen were ready to speed (Concluded on page 3)

CAVERHILL TO GO TO EMPIRE FOREST PARLEY

Political Upset Will Not Affect Province's Representation

The upheaval in Provincial politics will not interfere with British Columbia's representation at the British Empire Forestry Conference in Australia. It was announced at the Parliament Buildings to-day, P. Z. Caverhill, Chief Forester on the Province, will sail from here Wednesday on the Niagara to attend the Conference, as the only representative of Western Canada.

Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Minister of Lands, who had booked a passage to Australia to attend the conference, cancelled his plans when the Government was defeated in the recent election. Mr. Caverhill, however, was instructed to proceed. He will be absent about three months at the Conference and will make a complete tour of the new Australian capital.

BISHOP OF BUDAPEST IS NOW IN CITY

Count John Mikes Bound to

Victoria is One of Most

Ever Visited

Bishop Count John Mikes, of Budapest, Hungary, who is bound to Australia to attend the Eucharistic Congress at Sydney, is an interesting visitor to the city to-day, and will sail for the South Seas by the liner Niagara when she puts to sea on Wednesday night.

Bishop Mikes, with his secretary, Rev. Dr. John Zabo, reached Victoria yesterday from the mainland after spending some time at Banff and Lake Louise and are now registered at the Empress Hotel.

En route to the coast from the East Bishop Mikes visited the Hungarian settlement at Stockholm, Sask., in connection with the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the settlement, which comprises about 150 families. The Catholic Bishop displayed great interest in the inauguration of the aerial passenger service between Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle to-day.

He has visited the Pope in Rome by air from Smyrna.

Accompanied by Baron Andre Csaszary, a Hungarian rancher of Cochrane, Alta., Bishop Mikes, from his mountain headquarters at Banff, made a motor tour of the Rockies through the Kicking Horse Pass to Field, and he expresses himself as amazed and delighted with his experience.

A member of the party was Ivan Hordosy, editor of The Hungarian News of Winnipeg.

Another member of the party is Dr. D. Lakow, C.P.R. steamship and immigration agent at Saskatoon, Sask. In comparison with the Alps of Switzerland, with which Bishop Mikes is familiar, he says, is one of the most beautiful cities he has ever had the pleasure of visiting, and regrets his inability to remain here for a longer period.

Bishop Mikes, following the termination of the Eucharistic Congress session at Sydney, will return to Hungary by way of India.

He also said the police had a report that a man named Manuel Trejo, who was said to have furnished the pistol with which General Obregon was killed, had fled to the United States.

LEVELS SAG

Winnipeg, July 23.—Bears continued their merciless assault on wheat prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day, pounding values downward more than six cents at one period of the session. A break of nearly eight cents on the Liverpool exchange started the decline locally. As offerings were pressed on the market and foreigners failed to show any interest, prices started downward abruptly.

Selling appeared to come from all quarters and while a moderate business was worked around the low level, it had no appreciable effect against the tide of liquidations. Final quotations disclosed net losses for the day for 5½ to 6 cents. Optimistic crop news from the Canadian prairies and the United States aided the decline.

Weakness also dominated the coarse grains, but losses were not so spectacular. Oats declined ½ cent to 1½ and barley ¾ to 1 cent.

Immediately following the arrival of the plane the passengers adjourned to the Douglas Hotel, where a civic welcome awaited them, following a luncheon.

Earth at Aerodrome at 1 p.m., Completing Hop From Seattle After 2,700 Miles Flight; Mayor Pendray and Mayor Taylor, of Vancouver, Make First Trip With Other Passengers; Service to Vancouver and Seattle
Will Start This Week

By Times Staff Representative
Flying history was made in Victoria to-day with the arrival of the new Ford passenger air liner for the B.C. Airways Limited gulf service. The huge trimotored plane was brought to a gentle landing at the Lansdowne Aerodrome at 1 p.m., with Pilot Herold Walker at the controls. A crowd of several thousand people was on hand to witness the finish of an epoch-making flight.

Carrying Mayor and Mrs. J. Carl Pendray and Mayor L. D. Taylor, of Vancouver, and several flying officials and other passengers, the big air liner flew from Seattle to-day, completing a flight of 2,700 miles from Dearborn, Michigan. It took off from Seattle at 11.52 o'clock, after being delayed by slight trouble with one of its three engines.

The passengers on the inaugural trip besides the Mayor and Mrs. Pendray and Mayor Taylor, were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Eve, Mr. Eve being president of the B.C. Airways; Mrs. Cecil Eve; Frank M. Fretwell, president of the Seattle Chapter of the National Aeronautic Association; Claude Ramsey, of the National Aeronautic Association of Alaska, and Mrs. Ramsey; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Cameron and Donald Cameron; Major and Mrs. Perdrum Taylor and J. Fox, representative of the Victoria Daily Times. Herold Walker, a veteran of the flying service, was the pilot with T. H. Cressy, engine expert of the B.C. Airways, also in the pilot's cockpit. Last but not least, was "P.T.," a little terrier. He has been the mascot on the trip from Detroit. Mayor Edwards, of Seattle, was to have made the trip, but was delayed by last-minute business.

MANY SEE, LEAVING
Hundreds of people who had gathered at an early hour at the aerodrome to greet the plane commenced a vigil of two hours when word was received from Seattle that the machine had been delayed by engine trouble. As soon as the plane had been brought safely to earth the crowd, breaking police lines, surged upon the air liner, this first of its kind ever seen in Victoria, and the twenty-sixth of the type turned out by the Ford factory.

Motion picture camera operators worked their machines as the passengers stepped out from the door of the plane cabin. One of the most interesting of all the passengers was Little Donald Cameron, twenty-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Cameron of this city. Donald was the centre of admiring eyes as his father trod him from the plane. He is the first junior ever to fly in an international air service between the United States and Canada.

Perfect weather attended the trip from Seattle. The plane hopped off the ground at the Bryn-Mawr aerodrome in Seattle with ease and, after circling for altitude, made a bee-line for Victoria.

Mussolini, Although Dictator, Is Pictured As A Democrat Teaching People Real Politics

Benito Mussolini, dynamic Fascist chief and dictator of Italy, has been visualized in a new light as a man who has made it his life work to establish "a concentrated, organized and authoritative democracy."

The motives that have impelled Mussolini during his dramatic six years as head of the Italian government are explained by "An American Observer" in an article in The Review of Reviews. "The most cursory survey of Mussolini's career," the writer says, "shows him to have been always a man obsessed with one idea—attaining effective democracy in Italy."

"He has always envisioned a state in which the masses are directly involved in the government, which reflects and articulates the needs and aspirations of all citizens."

"This democratic ideal is the key to Mussolini's life. Without it he is inexplicable. With it his whole career is a logical chain of events, harmonizing with psychological and physical changes in Italy, and leading ever nearer his goal."

THE ELECTORAL LAW FROM ANOTHER ANGLE

The Observer, apparently a close student of Il Duce's career in all its aspects, advances an almost paradoxical argument to show what he means by Mussolini's democracy. He cites the electoral law that only recently passed both the Italian Chamber of Deputies and Senate, and now is destined to become law. It chokes off the handful of little political parties, and consolidates the Fascist party in power. It seems on the surface, the Observer points out, a crushing measure to many people. Actually, he says, it is a great step forward in Mussolini's plan to educate all Italians in the mechanics of government, to show them what is best for them, and to teach them how to select their rulers.

Mussolini's entire career is reviewed from his early days as a penniless, but ever-brilliant Socialist—who left the Socialist party when he thought it was getting away from his ideal of being a real people's party—and who, when Italy after the war was torn with industrial strife and threatened with Bolshevism led his Fascist band, seized the government, and begun a rehabilitation that is shown clearly to-day in Italy's prosperity—the stabilization of her currency, the growth of her trade, the stimulation of her agriculture, her lack of unemployment, and the general prosperity of her people.

Failures and Misfits Due to Infant Emotions Dominating Adult Life

New York, July 23.—Warren G. Harding, William Jennings Bryan, Isadora Duncan, "Diamond Jim" Brady and "Wild Bill" Hickok are cited among others as typical examples of adult people who remained "emotionally infantile" by Frank Parker Stockbridge in an article in the July issue of The Red Book Magazine. In their childish vanities or "temperamentalism," they never grew up, declares the writer. "It is the unconscious and misfits in life, socially, in the family and in business, as well as most human disappointment and suffering, are due to the failure of people to develop emotionally as they develop physically. Emotionally they remain children or infants, and let childish desires, vanities and feelings dominate their adult life. Therefore they fail to fit into the scheme of things, and their lives are generally marred if not often wrecked, by the man who suffers wounds to his self-esteem in silence among his business associates and later 'takes it out' on his family; the woman who goes into 'sanatoriums' over her troubles or feigns illness to win her husband's sympathy, are classed as emotional infants. The child who is 'raised a pet' is almost certain to grow up into an impossible person with whom no one can live happily. To develop physically does not mean a person is really mature, according to the new psychology. "What is your emotional age? Do you know whether you are emotionally adult or infantile? Do you fit into the scheme of things or are you a misfit in your environment?" writes Mr. Stockbridge.

"Those are important questions, for you and for the rest of the people you have to live and work with. "Be your age!" The phrase has a thousand implications which only youth which uses it fully comprehends; but the gist of them all is the kernel of the new psychology, which is this: "If your emotional age is not that of maturity, you haven't grown up yet. And the deeper the psychologists dig into the curious and complicated subject of human emotions, the clearer it appears that most of the grief and suffering in our private lives, the failures and misfits in our social and business careers, come about through the failure of so many of us to grow up emotionally."

"Your emotional age has nothing to do with your physical age. Neither has it any very close relation to your mental age, as determined by the psychological tests with which almost everybody is by now more or less familiar. Physically we are all grown-ups in our early twenties. Mentally we are mature enough for all practical purposes if our intelligent quotient as measured by standard tests is around that of fourteen years. That is about the average mental age of Americans. But to be grown up physically and mentally doesn't mean that you are

HE IMPORTS PARIS SO ZIZI SHALL BE IMAGE OF MOTHER

Seattle, July 23.—In the heart of this city a millionaire is spending thousands of dollars to rear a living monument to the memory of a French girl, once his wife.

The monument is Zizi, the daughter the French girl-wife gave her life for. For Zizi, her father, C. J. E. Blanc, has created a bit of Paris on the roof of a downtown building. French "atmosphere," imported at huge cost, surrounds the little girl. She is learning only the French language.

Imported French furniture, cut to baby size, is used in her private suite. In her wardrobe are costly French gowns and hats. A roof garden, all her own, is filled with Parisian toys—and a baby size grand piano, made in really mature. Your physical age may be thirty, your mental age twenty, but your emotional age may be that of a child of six.

"The place in the world for the emotionally self-centered person of either sex is getting smaller and smaller. In the old days of the 'great open spaces,' society more or less tolerated such egocentric emotionalists as Billy the Kid and Wild Bill Hickok. Modern civilization cannot permit its individual units to run wild, gratifying their vanity by killing and life. America is still suffering from a 'hang-over' from the wild, free times when a man could be a law unto himself and let his emotions run riot without restraint. It was not many years ago—within my own lifetime—that Jim Fiske was shot to death in the Broadway Central Hotel by Ed Stokes in a quarrel. They were both big men of affairs, powers in the financial world of much the same relative standing as any two of Wall Street's famous figures are to-day, but both were emotional infants."

"It is almost impossible to imagine men with so little control over their emotions as Fiske and Stokes gaining public confidence or cutting any appreciable figure in the world of business to-day. We are becoming civilized. That simply means that we are being forced, by the machine concentration of population into crowded centres, to learn how to live in a crowd. The successful adult life is that which is adjusted to the give-and-take of contacts with the crowd. And the crowd does not tolerate emotional manifestations which have no other basis than the frustration of one individual's personal desires. Yet emotions, properly controlled, are the ruling force in every human life."

"The secret of fitness for life in this civilized world is in discovering ways of working off one's emotions without being a nuisance to others, not in completely suppressing them. The Peter Pan's burst into tears, have 'tantrums' like a spoiled child, accuse other people of being to blame for their troubles. The man who in silence suffers wounds to his self-esteem during business hours, only to take it out on his family when he gets home is not grown-up; however, he may seem to be a business associate. The woman who simulates illness to arouse the sympathy of her husband is still an emotional infant."

"The infantile desire to be conspicuous manifests itself in a thousand mannerisms of dress, speech and conduct. The woman who lives beyond her husband's means, the man who buys a more expensive motorcar than he can afford, are emotional infants who have carried into maturity the desire for adulation, perhaps repressed too sternly in infancy, perhaps too freely gratified by over-indulgent parents."

"Warren G. Harding, kindly, good-hearted, lovable, was a perfect example of an individual who never really grew up. I remember sitting with him one summer day in the editorial office of The Marion Star, years before anybody (with the possible exception of himself) ever dreamed that he might some day be president of the United States. On the walls of his editorial sanctum were portraits of famous Republicans—Blaine, McKinley and Mark Hanna. 'But there,' said Harding, 'there is my real hero.' And he pointed to an engraving of Napoleon. Every boy wants to be a Napoleon or a Lindbergh, just as every girl dreams of herself as a Cinderella. Most of us abandon those childish vanities as we mature, but some of us cling to them as Warren Harding clung to his Napoleon ambition. With none of the qualities that make for leadership, he wanted to be a leader in the public eye. He was never happy unless he was the centre of attention. One of his first acts after being elected president was to order several dozen new suits of clothes."

"Being the world's greatest salesman brought the late 'Diamond Jim' Brady no popular acclaim, and so he displayed his emotional infantility by the public display of his costly collection of shirt-studs and cuff-links. Once at an opening night I sat in the same theatre box with Brady and Oscar Hammerstein, another man who advertised immature eccentricities of dress. Brady was wearing his famous black pearl set, studs as big as a fair-sized cherry, sleeve-links to match; he was worth perhaps a quarter of a million on the hoof that night. Everybody was looking at him, and he was happy."

"Physically and mentally the late Isadora Duncan was fully matured; emotionally she never grew up, as the story of her life, written by herself, amply proves. The 'temperament' displayed by many artists, musicians, singers, actors and dancers when not permitted to have their own way is proof of the same emotional immaturity which led them in the first place into careers which keep them in the public eye; the same sort of 'vanity' too often manifested on the floor of Congress, in the pulpit and the Chautauqua platform. William Jennings Bryan had it in a marked degree; his emotions were not those of an adult. "The time and place to begin the cure of emotional infantility is at home, in the cradle. The fault in practically every case lies with the parents. A girl or boy who has been 'raised a pet,' usually an only child, stands a better than even chance of growing up into an impossible person with whom nobody can live happily."

TWO AVIATORS INJURED

Ottawa, July 23.—Flight Lieut. Rupert Hislop, twenty-nine, is in a hospital here suffering from injuries sustained when the Sikka single-engine scout plane was flying from Camp Borden to Ottawa Saturday, crashed on a potato patch as he was trying to make a landing. The plane was a total wreck. Captain L. F. Maynard, instructor of the Ottawa Flying Club, sustained burns when flying to Hislop's rescue, he accidentally touched the hot exhaust pipe of his own De Havilland Moth plane. Hislop had his nose broken, his teeth knocked out and face badly bruised.

REQUEST PASTOR BE REINSTATED

Members of Vancouver Presbyterian Congregation Support Rev. S. B. Orr

Vancouver, July 22.—A petition for the reinstatement of Rev. S. B. Orr, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, was presented to the Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

It was circulated and largely signed at a service held by Mr. Orr yesterday morning in the women's building of the church, which was attended by more than 200 members of the Central Church congregation.

ASKS NO SALARY
Announcing at a conference held at the conclusion of the service that he would hold service in the women's building each Sunday, Mr. Orr was promised the support of the congregation. He stated he would minister to them without salary. The only organization he asked was the appointment of a treasurer, William McQueen, city clerk, was appointed to that position.

Mr. Orr informed the congregation he had applied for a copy of the evidence, in order that a petition might be addressed to the next General Assembly declaring the verdict was against the weight of evidence, and that irregularities of procedure had occurred, but this had been refused.

READ LETTER
He then read a copy of another letter he had sent Sunday morning to Rev. N. McEachern, chairman of the Assembly commission, demanding he be allowed to take certain extracts from the evidence at his own expense, and quoting church law in support of his request.

"I also wish to protest against the commission in the judgment of any reference to the charge of immorality, which was made so widespread by my accusers and which is in the public mind. The least that could have been said was that no evidence was adduced to support such a charge," the letter stated.

A NEW DAY
Preaching from the text, "Forgetting the things that are behind," Mr. Orr dealt with the subject, "Making the best of things." He urged his hearers to forget the wrongs, defeats and sorrows of the past and to reach out toward a new day.

The commission appointed by the Presbyterian Church in Canada heard evidence here last week. The hearing was the result of Mr. Orr having been named co-respondent in a divorce suit.

ITALIANS PLAN NOBILE INQUIRY

He protested against the "anti-human, anti-Italian" wave which has struck the participants in the unfortunate enterprise of the Italia.

The Premier declared definite judgment on the North Pole expedition must wait until the "dramas" arrives at its epilogue, but that meanwhile he wanted to protest against unfair judgments against the men involved.

"They have shown their courage and merit universal respect," he said.

INQUIRY PLAN
He continued that only when all humanly possible had been accomplished toward finding the still missing ground, "a highly objective, normal inquiry would be undertaken on the development of the enterprise, the reliable operations and all phases of this tragedy, which has shaken the world."

Such inquiry, the Premier stressed, would be made in Italy and by Italian persons. Any other hypothesis was absurd and offensive, he said, and whatever it might be or whoever the proposer came from, it would be immediately rejected.

Meanwhile, it should be recorded, he stated that the first to see the beleaguered group was Major Maddalena, the Italian flier, who went North on a Savoia-Marchetti machine.

RESCUERS THANKED
The Premier added that the Council of Ministers would be interpreting the sentiments of the Italian people in thanking all those who had contributed to the rescue operations, especially the crew of the Russian icebreaker Krasin, and in paying homage to the memories of Dr. Finn Malmgren, Swedish meteorologist, and Vincenzo Famella, motor attendant.

REPORT ABOUT ZAPPI
Moscow, July 22.—The correspondent of Tass, the Soviet news agency, aboard the Russian icebreaker Krasin, says that when Capt. Filippo Zappi was rescued by the Krasin he had clothes as well as a compass belonging to Dr. Finn Malmgren.

Capt. Zappi and his companion, Capt. Alberto Arimondi, also rescued, have been quoted as saying they left Dr. Malmgren dying in a grave of ice as they pressed on toward land to bring aid to the survivors of the lost polar expedition.

The Tass correspondent says that when Zappi came aboard the vessel he was wearing two pairs of trousers, two suits of underwear and three pairs of socks, while Arimondi had on one pair of trousers, one suit of warm underwear and two pairs of socks.

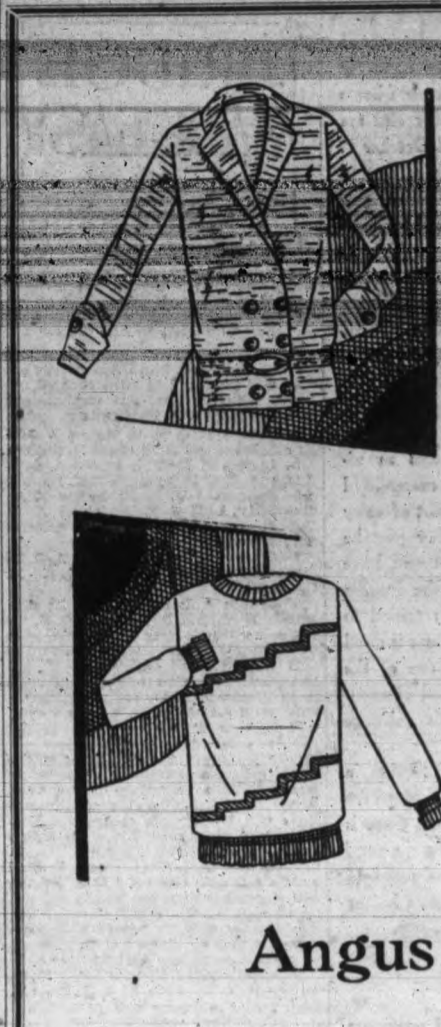

He adds that Zappi refused to give up letters which Professor F. Behounek, Czechoslovakian meteorologist, had entrusted to Dr. Malmgren before they started over the ice to send aid to Behounek and the others. He also refused to give up his notes.

NOBLE'S DESIRE
Moscow, July 22.—General Umberto Nobile is anxious to participate in further search for the six missing members of the lost North Pole Italia, but must obtain the permission of the Italian Government. Prof. Samoilovich, head of the Russian expedition of the icebreaker Krasin, informed the rescue commission at Moscow to-day.

Prof. Samoilovich's message was as follows:
"Replying to Nobile's urgent request, I visited him, as he could not leave his cabin because of his broken leg. Nobile, crushed and nervous, asked permission to take part in the Krasin's further search."

"I told him I had permission to take him aboard the Krasin, but Nobile said the Italian Government objected to his participating in the expedition. He, therefore, asks the Soviet Government to request the Italian Government to permit him to co-operate in the planned expeditionary work."

"I told Nobile I would radio his request to Moscow."

PLANE ARRIVES TO START NEW SERVICE

Mrs. Harold Walker, who made the trip with her husband, the pilot of the plane, in company with Mrs. Motherall, the mechanic, Mr. Walker and William Strain, head of the Northwest Air Service at Seattle, told of the trip while preparations were being made to fly to Victoria.

Rain and fog in Chicago next morning made a take-off seem difficult, but the weather cleared, and at 9 a.m. the plane hopped off for Iowa City. An hour and forty-five minutes sufficed for the big air liner to reach this city.

ENCOUNTERED HEAT
"It was burning hot when we reached Iowa City," Mrs. Walker commented. "We did not stay long and were soon off again for Omaha."

At Omaha a stop was made for more fuel and the plane hopped off again for North Platte.

"Flying conditions were getting better," Mrs. Walker said. "It was not so bumpy as it had been when we were in the hot region."

"It was rather difficult landing at North Platte. The field was small and was 2,500 miles above sea level, and we had to make a fast landing. But we made it nicely."

The left motor was giving a little trouble at this stage of the flight and Mrs. Walker was up in the early hours of the next morning working on it. This delayed the start and the plane was not in the air again until 10:30 a.m.

"Everyone in North Platte was out to see us off," Mrs. Walker commented. "It was the largest ship they had ever seen and all the citizens were there to watch it."

STOPPED FOR FUEL
Following the airmail route, which was taken because of reliable weather and flying reports, the plane's next stop was Cheyenne. Here it was again refueled and hopped off for Rock Springs, Wyoming.

"From Cheyenne we had a wonderful trip," said Mrs. Walker. "It was over the Rocky Mountains and the scenery was marvelous. This ship behaved wonderfully. It certainly gives one a sense of security."

Mrs. Walker paid high tribute to the work of Pilot Walker and Mechanic Cressey.

"The Ford factory they told us we couldn't get away without a Ford pilot and Ford mechanic. But we're here safe and sound and we haven't had the slightest nervousness. They kept to the course wonderfully and had perfect control of the ship at all times."

"BUMPY" WEATHER
The flight from Cheyenne to Rock Springs was one of the "bumpiest" of the trip, Mrs. Walker continued, at the same time praising the action of the plane's big wingspread in absorbing the air pockets.

Owing to local flying conditions, a takeoff was made from Rock Springs at 6 a.m. the next day. It was a two-hour trip to Salt Lake City over high mountains, and after crossing the last ridge at 10,000 altitude, a long glide was made into the flying field at Salt Lake.

"The air was so clear and deceiving we thought we should have to spiral down to Salt Lake but we easily made it in a long glide," Mrs. Walker remarked.

TROUBLE WAS SLIGHT
The hop from Salt Lake to Boise, Idaho, occasioned the first real trouble of the flight. The left motor began to miss, and although the plane was forty-five miles out over Salt Lake, the pilot turned its nose backward to the flying field. The trouble, a loose rocker arm, was fixed in a few minutes by Mechanic Cressey.

"We could easily have made it to Boise with the other two motors," said Cressey, "but were not taking the chance of a burnt out valve."

Mr. Walker spoke of the wonderful sight which Salt Lake presents from the air. Herds of buffalo and horses on the islands in the lake drew the attention of the plane's passengers.

GREETED BY CROWDS
From Boise the plane hopped to Vancouver, Washington, and from Vancouver made the last jump to Seattle on Sunday morning. She was met by a large crowd at the Bryn Mawr aerodrome in Seattle where she remained overnight preparatory to the flight to Victoria to-day.

Those who made the journey from Dearborn and the passengers in the plane from Seattle to-day, paid glowing tribute to the airworthiness of the machine.

"It is just like riding in an automobile," Mrs. Walker said. "I thought it would be a lot worse."

"Isn't there a wonderful feeling of security?" These and many other expressions heard during the transatlantic flight to-day.

GOES TO VANCOUVER
The plane took off this afternoon again on an inaugural flight to Vancouver carrying Mayor Taylor and several other officials.

Ernest E. Peterson, president of the B.C. Airways, announced that the regular passenger service would probably be started about Thursday of this week. This service will provide two trips a day to Vancouver and return and two round trips to Seattle, with a total flying time per day of seven hours.

LONG EXPERIENCE
Pilot Walker, a man of 3,000 hours flying service, and who has actually flown thirty-eight types of machine, has had a year's experience between Victoria and Seattle in air mail work. He is known as one of the most experienced and able pilots on the Pacific Coast.

The machine, the largest of its type in passenger service, is built throughout of duralumin and alloy steel. It has a wing spread of seventy-four feet, a body length of fifty feet, stands twelve feet high and carries twelve passengers, besides its two pilots.

The plane can carry 1,000 pounds of mail and express at a cruising speed of ninety miles per hour, driven by three Wright Whirlwind 220-horse-powered motors and return and two round trips to Seattle, with a total flying time per day of seven hours.

FLIGHT OF 1,600 MILES
Seattle, July 23.—The giant plane, capable of carrying twenty-three passengers, arrived at Bryn Mawr field yesterday afternoon with six persons aboard, completing the 1,600-mile flight from Detroit in two days, with stops at Chicago, Boise, Idaho and Vancouver, Wash.

On the westward flight were Mrs. Corinne Motherall of New Jersey, fifty-five-year-old mother of Mr. C. H. Eve, making her first airplane flight. She declared she enjoyed it hugely. C. H. Eve, William Strong, president of the Renton Commercial Club; Pilot Harold Walker, former army aviator and Mrs. Walker, and Engineer T. H. Cressey were the others.

Carrying 1,000 pounds of express and mail, the giant plane is capable of accommodating twelve passengers in addition to two pilots, although twenty-three passengers can be carried if necessary. At least during the summer tourist season the plane will make two round trips daily between the three cities.

CONFESSION BY MAN WHO SLEW OREGON

Insured the general feeling of tension. Agrarian leaders, naming Morones as one of the "psychological authors" of the crime, had asserted that unless he withdrew from the Government there would be civil war. The central commission of the Regional Federation of Labor instructed Morones and two other labor leaders, C. Gage, chief of ordinance and E. Monada, chief of the Government printing shops, to resign. President Calles promptly accepted their withdrawal from his Government.

PROVISIONAL PRESIDENT
Either President Calles or Aaron Sanchez, Governor of Nueva Leon, will be named by Congress Provisional President for two years, it is believed.

Jose de Leon Toral, mayor of General Obregon, is ready to play for his crime with his life without trial, but the Government continued firm to-day in its decision to bring the young art student before the civil courts.

one this morning," Peterson said. Mr. Jones asked him what he wanted and the young teller asked for the loan of $300. Witness declared, "Witness offered to give him a cheque but Peterson refused stating he wanted cash. Peterson then left the store saying he could do without the money. Mr. Jones declared."

FINE CHARACTER
Thomas Mutch, manager of the bank, gave evidence as to the fine character and loyalty of the teller. He said Peterson's accounts had been checked and everything was found to be in order. Peterson appeared to be in the best of health, he said. The manager stated that some time ago Peterson had told him that while cleaning the revolver, which was the same one that caused his death, he had discharged it accidentally.

Walter Calwell, police detective, said he had proceeded to the scene of the tragedy in response to a telephone call arriving there at 8:45 o'clock. He found Peterson lying in a bedroom upstairs with a bullet wound in his right temple and a .32 automatic revolver clutched in his right hand.

Walter Calwell, police detective, said he had proceeded to the scene of the tragedy in response to a telephone call arriving there at 8:45 o'clock. He found Peterson lying in a bedroom upstairs with a bullet wound in his right temple and a .32 automatic revolver clutched in his right hand.

FRENCH PLANE ON OCEAN HOP

the next leg of their flight. They plan to head for Bermuda, stopping there to refuel if necessary, and continuing to New York.

Capt. Frank T. Courtney, British airman who, with his three companions, was turned back by bad weather when he tried to fly to New York from Horta, was on the breakwater when the Frenchmen arrived.

AIDED BY GOVERNMENT
Lieut. Paris and his companions are making their flight under the joint auspices of the French Naval and Commerce Departments. If upon their arrival at New York Lieut. Paris thinks a return flight is feasible, they will be instructed to fly back by way of Newfoundland.

The Frenchmen covered the first leg of their flight with clocklike regularity. The radio equipment of the plane sends and receives on both long and short wave lengths, and the fliers kept their promise to send hourly radio bulletins of their progress.

The flight of La Fregate is more a scientific than a sporting affair, and is the first French effort to cross the North Atlantic by seaplane. The preparations for it extended for more than a year.

The plane is equipped with two 480-horsepower motors. It carries sufficient food for an emergency should the plane be forced down on the water.

TO MAKE RETURN FLIGHT
P. C. Weiler, vice-president of the company that installed the motors in the seaplane, left France for New York them to St. George, Staten Island, where they boarded a ferry for the Battery, starting point of their race.

STARTED FROM NEW YORK
Messrs and Collier left the Battery June 29 at 5 a.m. in a seaplane, which landed them at sea beside a pilot boat, which put them aboard the liner Olympic at 2:45. The Olympic at that time, nearly six hours out from New York.

Aboard the Olympic, which carried the travelers to Cherbourg, France, was the folding-winged Fairchild monoplane in which they made the journey across Europe, Asia and the North American continent. They crossed the water jumps by steamer.

ACROSS EUROPE AND ASIA
Landing in Paris from Cherbourg, the globe circled flew successively to Berlin, Moscow, Kourgan, Krasnoyarsk, Chita, Mukden and Tokyo. Upon their arrival at the Tokyo-Yokohama flying field they transferred to the liner Empress of Russia, heading for Victoria, B.C. July 12.

Arriving at Victoria at 10:10 o'clock Friday night, the fliers unloaded the plane and took off at 3:37 a.m., Pacific Coast time, Saturday on the last lap of their journey, the flight across the North American continent. A stop was made at Spokane, Wash., for refueling, and the fliers arrived at Minneapolis, Minn., at 2:35 Central Standard Time, Saturday night.

WEATHER INTERFERES
Adverse weather conditions interfered with their plans for a non-stop flight for the remainder of the journey. They took off from the World-Chamberlain Field at Minneapolis at 2:50 a.m. Sunday and were forced to land at the Chicago municipal airport at 8 o'clock to gain their bearings in the fog that covered the region. Fifteen minutes later they left Chicago, but were forced to descend at Cleveland, Ohio, at 11:30 a.m. Eastern Standard Time, because of threatening weather conditions.

After a pause of twenty minutes at Cleveland, they were in the air again. An attempt to circle a heavy rainstorm and fog bank over Pennsylvania caused a 35-minute stop at the Middletown, Pa. aviation field to replenish their fuel supply.

The take-off from Middletown was made at 4:36 p.m.

OUR PLACE IN THE AIR

WHEN THE FLYING POSTMAN HAD completed his hundredth round trip between this city and Seattle we predicted that it would not be many years before there would be a regular triangular aerial passenger service between Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle. Only about five years have gone by since then and our prediction already has come true. Victoria greets to-day the huge three-motored aerial liner which is to inaugurate this service and maintain a schedule which will provide two triangular trips daily.

Many features of this enterprising innovation are worthy of special mention. First and foremost The Times congratulates the officials of the local company who have demonstrated such commendable initiative as to put Victoria so prominently on the air map of this continent. This community has every reason to be proud of the venture. The machine which arrived here this afternoon is one of the largest in the world—it is similar in construction and accommodation to those which ply the air routes of Europe—and the largest and most luxurious on this continent. It is the first of its kind in the international service on this side of the Atlantic. And we may assume that very soon, as the travelling public gets its air legs, enough patronage will be provided to make the undertaking a commercial success and justify the extension of the company's activities.

We may be permitted to make another prediction. In less time than has elapsed since the aerial postman made his hundredth trip between here and Seattle one of the principal attractions to the Northwest, in addition to the service which now is about to be inaugurated, will be the excursions by air over Vancouver Island, over some of the most enchanting scenery to be found anywhere. Not only will that business be of practical assistance to the company which is doing the local pioneering work in this regard; it will insure a very large increase in tourist travel to Victoria.

It should be remembered by those who are inclined to shy at what they loosely call new-fangled ideas that passenger air services in the Old World now are as common as railway services. They long ago ceased to be a novelty. In fact, the most remarkable feature about this method of travel nowadays is the regularity with which these great air liners come and go and the almost complete absence of accident. Railway disasters in Europe indeed have been much more frequent proportionately, and the loss of life very considerably greater, than mishaps in the air.

What has been done elsewhere, of course, can be done here. Canada gave the Allied forces some of the most capable airmen the war produced. Many of these still are comparatively young men. As the country's aerial services grow, their experience, no doubt, will be available. In the meantime, the B.C. Airways Limited has shown the way to the rest of the Dominion, and The Times repeats its congratulations and bespeaks for it all the support to which it is entitled.

HOW TO ENTER CANADA

TOURISTS ENTER CANADA WITH AN ease and freedom from annoyance which is a constant source of wonder to Old World visitors. Along the 3,000 miles of frontier separating Canada from the United States automobiles stream across the border with seldom more than a few minutes' delay. The expeditiousness with which visitors to Canada clear the Canadian Customs is in part due to the fact that many of the tourists are now thoroughly acquainted with the formalities at border points and come prepared with the necessary particulars regarding their automobiles and equipment so that the forms may be quickly filled out and verified by the customs officials. Tourists may fill out these forms themselves or receive assistance from customs officers free of charge.

To make the requirements of the Canadian customs still better known the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa has recently prepared in co-operation with the Department of National Revenue a summary of customs regulations entitled "How to Enter Canada." Canadians who have friends or relatives whom they expect to visit them could perform an appreciated service by having this publication forwarded to the intending visitors.

The reciprocal freedom which exists as regards tourist travel between Canada and the United States is exemplified by the fact that no passports are required. Automobiles for purposes of health or pleasure are entered into Canada duty free on permits for sixty days which may be extended to ninety days. For longer periods up to six months a bond for the amount of duty and taxes ordinarily payable on the car is required, but this detail may be conveniently arranged through a customs broker or directly with an incorporated guarantee company authorized to do business in Canada. Pleasure boats may also be entered on permit without duty and are allowed to remain in Canadian waters until October 1.

The privileges of freedom from duty or deposit extend to the tourists guns, rifles, fishing tackle, golf clubs, tennis racquets and cameras, where these have been previously used and are brought into Canada for health or pleasure. On other items of tourist outfit for personal use such as canoes, outboard motors, tents, camp equipment, phonographs, radios, musical instruments, etc., a sum of money equivalent to the duty and taxes is deposited with the customs officer and this is refunded if the articles are identified and exported outwards within six months.

The freedom of the Canadian customs as regards tourists' automobiles and outfits is exemplified in another way in that irrespective of the port of entry the tourist may leave Canada by any other port he chooses. He may enter at the east coast and have his automobile and outfit checked out at the Pacific Coast just as conveniently as if he had returned to the point of entry. And his automobile license is good all along the way. The license of any one of the United States is valid for a generous period in every province in Canada, the duration of this privilege varying in the different provinces.

In respect to Canadians entering and touring in the United States similar privileges exist. Nowhere in the world is there a boundary line where there is less inconvenience for the tourist. When on the road he is an international figure who crosses and recrosses the boundary line at will with extremely little bother or delay, and he is welcomed in either country.

AUSTRALIA'S TROUBLES

IT IS ONE THING FOR PREMIER BRUCE to say that the policy of his Government is to populate Australia with ninety-eight per cent. British stock and another thing to do it and develop the country. He is up against a number of factors which no doubt will blast his hopes to some extent unless he intends to be satisfied with a very small flow of migrants. For instance, the total migration from Great Britain to non-European countries last year was 153,505 and of these Canada drew 53,503, or approximately half, and Australia 40,400.

It was a different matter in the year 1911-1914, when about 260,000 left the United Kingdom annually. Of these Canada drew about 130,000. The indications are, however, that as conditions improve in Britain, future years will witness a still smaller outflow. Assuming, therefore, that Australia gets an average of 30,000 annually, there still may be a ninety-eight per cent. of British stock admitted into Australia; but can it be seriously suggested that that is enough for the country's purpose?

The immigration question is only one of Premier Bruce's troubles. The finances of his country are not in a very good shape. His Government is facing a fairly substantial deficit. Labor and Capital are continually at loggerheads, due mainly to a high protection policy and the determination of the workers at every turn to share in the profits which a small circle of employers are drawing. Now we see the Labor movement in the Commonwealth captured by the radical elements. All of which suggests that the Australian Government apparently would be well advised to adopt a less restricted plan for attracting new people. If it does as Canada does, and draws good northern European stock, it will not go far wrong. If it relies upon its present policy, it looks as if still more troubles are in store for it.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

UNWILY ASSEMBLIES

Quebec Evening News (Cons.)

Already, in proportion to Canada's population, our country has more members of Parliament than either Great Britain or the United States. This is a useless complication of the business of government. It would seem to be time to fix by law the maximum which would never be exceeded in federal representation. Loss of time, loss of money, loss of efficiency, this is the everlasting cost of the progressive increase in the number of our Deputies and Senators. It would be a wise thing to limit the number of seats in the Upper House to 100 and in the Lower House to 300.

NEW USE FOR ELECTRICITY

The Toronto Globe

Canada's Department of the Interior has taken prompt notice that "the electrified garden" is the latest thing in agriculture in Sweden. And if the results are as satisfactory as testified it has ample justification for doing so. It is said that vegetables are grown within the Arctic Circle, where normally this would be impossible through lack of sufficient heat, by the simple means of heating the soil by electric current. Electrically heated hotbeds in Sweden now cover 6,000 square yards. The season is carried back into March and early April, and is extended two months beyond the frosts of September. If it is possible in Sweden, the "electrified garden" is a future in Canada? This is a question the department asks through the Natural Resources Service. The possibilities are alluring. Canada has an abundance of water power in the country where the season is short, and it will provide cheap current. But it may become useful as a supplementary heating service in Ontario, for the current can be used at night when not required for other purposes. If the plan is successful in Sweden, why not here, extending the season and providing early vegetables to compete with importations? Spring and Fall are found equally practical for the growing of lettuce, radishes, spinach, dill, carrots, potatoes, cucumbers and melons. Strawberries are started up as early as February.

Christian Science Service

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches on Sunday, July 22, was "Truth." Among the citations comprising the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible, "The Lord is good, a strong hold in the day of trouble; and He knoweth them that trust in Him" (Psalm 147).

Also the following correlative passage from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy. The confidence inspired by Science lies in the fact that Truth is real and error is unreal. Error is a coward before Truth. Divine Science insists that time will prove all this. Both truth and error have come nearer than ever before to the apprehension of mortals, and truth will become clearer and error is self-destructed."

JOTS FROM GEOGRAPHY

TINERANT SHOWMEN, of India, are very popular in the country. Their zoo is small, of course, and the animals are not particularly troublesome. Usually the show consists of an old goat, preferably a black one, and several chattering monkeys. The showmen charge only what the public feels like contributing, which is very little, and in return give an "up-to-the-minute" performance.

Treasure Hunting Up-to-date

By ARTHUR LOWE

The most amazing treasure hunt in the history of the world is taking place to-day in the Canadian North. It is a treasure hunt organized like a punt-stretching from the Yukon to Ungava. Before the end of June over 200 prospectors will have joined in the quest for gold. The expedition is led by a party of geologists, engineers and guides. Units of the army will be moved here and there across the pre-Cambrian shield by gigantic motor-supplies into Hudson Bay, and so on, being tracked up the rivers to the north. The battle of man versus the map is on.

The commander-in-chief of the expedition is Jack Hammell, one of the most colorful figures to come out of the north. For a quarter of a century Hammell has been a leading figure in mining circles. He was responsible for the staking and development of the Fin Fion, he is president of Howey, Harker and Green-Stable; he has grub-staked more prospectors than any dozen men put together—and he is still on the job.

During a lull between deals Jack Hammell dreamed his dream. He visualized an army of prospectors carried to and fro by giant planes—and he decided to make the dream become an actuality. Northern Aerial Minerals Exploration, Ltd., was formed; over two million dollars was subscribed, mostly by important mining companies; ten aeroplanes were ordered; bases were established at strategic points across the pre-Cambrian shield, and prospectors, geologists, engineers and pilots flocked to the Hammell standard.

At the present time four large planes are in service and over fifty prospectors are in the field. By the end of June the army will be up to full strength.

There was no need for Hammell to send far for men. Old-timers spoke of him as a "crack" but they rallied round him, almost to a man. One of the first to enlist was Sandy McIntyre, discoverer of the famous McIntyre mine. McIntyre, a Scotchman, a veteran of the Fin Fion trail, is directing operations at a base. Other men, deservedly famous in the history of mining, are in the line of prospecting parties scattered throughout the field.

Hammell himself, is directing operations at headquarters, but less than a mile away his private plane is moored ready to take him into the firing line as soon as a discovery is reported. Day after day, he is going to crack open the Canadian north—but it is going to be cracked open scientifically; mile by mile and acre by acre.

"By using the aeroplane," he told me, "we are going to do in five years what it would take fifty years to accomplish in the ordinary way. Every prospecting party we place in the field will be able to cover a much ground as six parties working without planes. When you consider that our prospecting force alone will comprise over 200 men, you will get some idea of the possibilities ahead of us. Within five years I expect to see a dozen new mining fields opened up in Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec."

Hammell regards this tremendous undertaking of his as more than a matter of dollars and cents. He is already rich in both friends and money, and he might retire with the knowledge that he has done as much as any man towards the development of the Canadian north. But he has a whole some contempt for men who retire just because they are rich. "Pikers," he calls them. Men whose only interest is the prize money. But Hammell it's the race alone that counts.

He told me of the inspiration which

The secretary reports that the entries received are gratifying to the executive, quite a number of exhibitors making thirty to forty entries. Complaints just at this time of the year with the season just a little early, a large display of dahlias and gladioli will be seen, with sweet peas making a very creditable showing. A splendid collection of roses will also be shown. In addition to the many and varied varieties of flowers on the exhibiting table, quite a number of trade displays will be arranged, including the new season's catalogues. The Victoria Horticultural Society, which is the organizing body, is displaying its own catalogues. Entries to the exhibition are assured of seeing a wealth of bloom, in addition to the wealth of produce of fruits and vegetables from some of the recent prize-winning gardens.

Keen competition is expected in the group displays of potted plants, and also that of cut flowers and foliage, each group consisting of thirty-six square feet of floor space. The challenge cups of the society are given these exhibitors.

GREAT PAINS

Wife—I have taken great pains in making these cookies, by my own recipe, for you.
Husband—Yes, and I am going through great pains in eating them, too. They'd make good wedges.

lies behind this prospecting company. In jerky sentences he spoke of breaking new trails, inspecting prospects, roughing it with the best of them—and the worst. It seems that the north "got him," gave him a new outlook on life, a new vision. He came to regard the north as those earlier pioneers regarded the west—it was a country to be won. He developed prospects, grub-staked prospectors and acted as a connecting link between the bush and Wall Street. He made a fortune for himself and fortunes for at least a dozen prospectors. But that wasn't enough. He dreamed his dream.

"I'm going to crack it open," he said.

"I'm going to prove what geologists have been saying for years. I am going to give the five best years of my life to this job of developing the north country."

And so this battle of men versus the map is on. Old-timers say that Jack Hammell will win—because he always keeps his word.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO TO-DAY

The big dredge Edward is doing great work. Up to noon to-day more than 3,000 yards of filling had been deposited behind the retaining wall on the Belleville Street side.

Weather Forecast—Victoria and Vicinity—Southerly winds, unsettled and cool, with showers chiefly at night.

Yesterday afternoon the concluding matches of the British Columbia Rifle Association took place at the Clover Point Range. More interest was evinced in yesterday's events than in those of any previous day.

At a special meeting of the Trades and Labor Council held last evening, the council formed itself into a general committee to arrange for an excursion on Labor Day to Vancouver.

Up to 8 o'clock yesterday there were 3,630 votes registered. This only is about seventy-five per cent of the number the Victoria list should contain. The several hundred who wended their way over to the Douglas Gardens last evening were repaid by a most enjoyable evening.

The new Government cable repairing ship Iris arrived from London, via Sydney and Honolulu, this afternoon, to lay a wire between Banfield Creek and the head of the Alberni Canal.

DON'T FOOL HOLLYWOOD!

Sonia Karlov Finds There's No Percentage in It

Hollywood, Cal., July 23.—Hollywood doesn't like to be fooled!

Slightly more than a year ago, Jean Williams quit the Follies in New York and came here to take a crack at pictures. But she met with only failure. She was taken ill. When she emerged from a hospital three months later, Jean Williams of the Follies had become Sonia Karlov, a Danish actress.

Introduced into society by her agent as a screen actress recently arrived from Denmark, Miss Karlov was accepted with great favor. Parties were given in her honor. Cecil B. DeMille gave her a contract.

Then Sonia was recognized by a former dancer in the Follies. She confessed.

"That ended everything for me," says the charming blond. "As soon as studio officials learned that I wasn't a foreigner, they could find no work for me even though I look foreign enough to have fooled them. At the end of six months, my contract was not renewed. They told me that I was the wrong type—although I never had been given a screen test."

"While the casting directors thought I was Danish, they sought me out. Now that I am just myself again, none has anything to offer."

Hollywood doesn't like to be fooled.

Sonia Karlov Pooled Hollywood, for a While

MARYE AND "MOM" Their Letters

Dear Mom:

After my last outburst, which must have stunned you somewhat, I am sure you will be relieved to have me be my frivolous self.

I think, possibly, that seeing so many people every day, and finding myself with women who have such decided opinions on everything are making a changed woman out of me.

Jane and I both have made good as models. Jane is more excited about business all the time, and she is making her plans to get one of the best designers here for her own shop. Before she opens it, she will go to Paris to select the fittings for her shop and to bring back some French seamstresses.

She wants me to go into business with her—I even can come in without any capital, since her father is quite willing to finance it for her, and I am seriously considering it. For I find that life passes much more pleasantly for me when I am busy, and there is a fascination in business that I readily respond to.

But whether I want to devote the rest of my life to clothes or not, I don't know. At any rate, I plan to stay here a few weeks longer.

You may be pleased to know that I have been formally introduced to the handsome man with the eyebrows that don't match. He bears the prosaic name of Shelton—William J., I believe. When he found that I did not respond to his flirtation—and apparently he did not realize that I was lacking in time rather than in money—he decided to pass him by with such a dejected air, he set about to be introduced properly.

It seems he knows Madame Blise very well, so he just asked her to present him, which she did. And then when he invited me to luncheon it seemed perfectly proper for me to accept. I did, and to-morrow we dine in state.

His excuse for wanting to know me is that I resemble some dear but deceased friend of his, and he feels that I cannot look so much like her without having a disposition and character similar to hers, and he needs must know me better.

It may be a mere excuse, but a rather interesting one. I think, and I have a theory of my own—that men with that peculiar trick of operating their eyebrows so differently must have some corresponding quirk of temperament. I feel I ought to investigate that hunch, now that the material is right here waiting to put under my microscope.

Therefore, our acquaintance starts out on a highly scientific and commendable basis.

MARYE.

LOCAL GIRL IS CLEVER MUSICIAN

A young Victoria musician who promises to go far in her chosen field is Miss Audrey Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Wood of Regina and Victoria. She received her musical education in this city, having passed the whole course of the Associated Board of the Royal Academy and Royal College of Music, London, England, without a failure, gaining a special certificate and a letter of congratulation from the secretary of the Associated Board for her "splendid record." She gained her L.A.B. degree last year, this year receiving honorable mention in the final grade. Miss Wood is Canadian born and is a pupil of Stanley Shale, A.R.A.M.

SCRUPULOUS CARE OF BOTTLES AND NIPPLES NECESSARY

Summer complaint, which seems to some mothers an inescapable hot weather ailment, is due to infection, and an infection that is quite unnecessary if the mother is careful to boil all milk used for the baby, to keep it ice cold after boiling and to take the proper care of all bottles and nipples used for its feeding. Proper care of bottles and nipples is trouble and lots of it, but it can be done and done every single day and so one might as well learn the right method as soon as one institutes bottle feeding.

Choose any type of bottle which can be easily cleaned, that is, has no sharp angles which cannot be easily reached by a bottle brush. Use a type of nipple that can be reversed and scrubbed on both sides. There are many types of bottles and nipples which live up to these requirements.

Have one nursing bottle for each feeding in the twenty-four hours and one extra in case of accident. New bottles should be washed in soap and water, put on the stove in a kettle of cold water and this water should come to a boil. Boil for twenty minutes and let cool in the water. This prevents the bottles from being broken so easily when the hot formula is placed in them.

After a feeding the bottle should be rinsed immediately in cold water, and set aside for better washing later. Rinse nipples also. In the morning wash all bottles and nipples in hot soap suds, using a bottle brush. Rinse and place bottles in a large pan of cold water. Let water come to a boil and boil for five minutes. Fish out bottles and drain on a clean cloth and cover and allow to stand until they are filled. Bottles boiled every day become discolored especially if the water used is hard. This can to some extent be overcome by using some baking soda in the water.

INDIAN PRINCESS SINGS TO-NIGHT

To-night at the Centennial Church, George Road, Princess Chauquagath or Louise Merrill Cooper, an Indian Princess, will present a song recital, assisted at the piano by Robert Elmer Smith, American author and composer of many of the songs which the singer will include on to-night's programme. Princess Chauquagath is a dramatic mezzo-soprano with a voice of appealing beauty and wide range and her record will include a group of very beautiful Indian love songs, a group of Nature songs and several sacred numbers.

New nipples may have to be scrubbed with some cleansing powder to remove the powdery finish on them and sometimes to soften them slightly as they are too stiff for use. After each feeding rinse in cold water and wash with soap and hot water the same as the bottles. Boiling every day soon makes them so soft that they collapse and are unfit to use. Keep them in a clean covered glass jar until ready to use.

When bottles are filled they should be closed with cotton, or the rubber of paper tops which can be bought for that purpose. Never put a bottle of hot liquid in the ice box. If hot, the bottles should be placed in cold water and cold water from the hydrant run over them until they are cold. They should be kept on ice until used.

WAS SISTER OF ST. ANN'S OVER HALF CENTURY

Requiem Mass and Funeral Held For Late Sister Mary Catherine

Requiem Mass was held at the chapel of St. Ann's Convent for the late Sister Mary Catherine, who after fifty-seven years in the Order of St. Ann, passed away on Saturday afternoon. Mr. Leterme said Mass, and Rev. Father Cody, S.J., of Seattle, who is conducting the annual retreat at St. Ann's Convent, was deacon, and Rev. Father Evans, rector of St. Andrew's Cathedral, was sub-deacon. A number of friends of the late Sister attended the impressive services. Interment will be made in the Sisters' plot at Ross Bay Cemetery this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Born in Colfax, New York State, seventy-two years ago, the late Sister Mary Catherine was Miss Mary McIntire. At the age of six years she came with her mother and brother, via the isthmus of Panama, to Victoria to join her father, who was in the merchandise business here. After the death of her mother she was educated at St. Ann's Academy and at the age of eighteen expressed a desire to take the vows of sisterhood.

She accordingly left via California for the Mother House of the Order of St. Ann at Lachine, Quebec, where she took her vows about the year 1871. After some years in the East she returned to Victoria in 1878 as a teacher and subsequently became Sister Superior at St. Ann's Academy, Vancouver, and at the Kamloops Academy. She also taught music at New Westminster.

For the last twenty years since her teaching duties became too strenuous, she had been attached to the office staff at St. Joseph's Hospital where she was a familiar and well-beloved figure with the public. In 1928 Sister Mary Catherine celebrated the golden jubilee of her entry into the order.

KING'S DAUGHTERS TAG SATURDAY

Benevolent Order Does Wonderful Work For Sick and Needy

The King's Daughters, a benevolent organization which carries on a wonderful but non-spectacular work among the sick and needy of the city, will appeal to the general public for support with a tag day on Saturday next, July 28.

The order is incorporated under the B.C. Benevolent Societies' Act and its motto is "Lend a Hand in His Name." The various circles of the order accomplish much splendid work by sewing for the Protestant Orphanage and the Children's Aid Home, maintaining the King's Daughters Hospital at Duffin, and assisting worthy cases who do not come within the purview of other relief organizations. The order also maintains a rest room in the Ribben Bone Building where business girls may have their luncheon.

The annual tag day and the daffodil tea are the only occasions during the year on which the order appeals to the public for support. The circles raise all their own funds by their own efforts, and it is noteworthy that these efforts do not include dances, bridge parties nor raffles.

Mrs. L. H. Hardie, president, Mrs. Ferguson, Mrs. James Stewart and Mrs. Wm. Russell are acting as the general conveners and Mrs. McElfish, Mrs. Eales, Mrs. Sharp, Mrs. Kathleen Roberts and Rev. A. de B. Owen will have charge of various corners.

The headquarters for the day will be at the Melrose store and refreshments will be served to taggers at the rest room, Ribben Bone Building. Mrs. R. A. Playfair and Mrs. A. T. Harvey being in charge. Any woman willing to assist with the tagging will be cordially welcomed.

Breakfast—Stewed prunes, cereal, cream, poached eggs on milk toast, crisp broiled bacon, milk, coffee.

Lunch—Toad in a hole, scalloped tomatoes, raisin bread, vanilla cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—Stuffed spack, potatoes au gratin, buttered spinach, banana and peanut salad, cream with strawberries, milk, coffee.

VEAL AND VEGETABLE PIE

One pound lean veal, one cup small cooked onions, 1 cup dried cooked carrots, 1 cup cooked green peas, 2 cups cooked potato marbles, 2 cups butter, 2 tablespoons flour, salt and pepper, 1 1/2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 tablespoon shortening, milk.

Choose veal from small part of leg since it is usually cheaper. Cover with boiling water and simmer until tender, but not broken. Add salt and let cool in stock, overnight if possible. Remove fat and bones from meat making pieces suitable for serving. Arrange in a buttered casserole. Remove fat from the stock and strain through a cheese cloth. There should be from 2 to 3 cups of stock. Melt butter, stir in flour, and when mixture bubbles add stock, stirring constantly. Bring to the boiling point and season well with salt and pepper. Add prepared vegetables to meat and pour sauce over the whole. Mix and stir flour, baking powder and salt. Rub in shortening and cut in milk with a knife. Use enough milk to make a soft dough. Roll on a floured molding board and cut with a small biscuit cutter. Cover top of combination in baking dish with biscuits and bake in a hot oven until the biscuits are thoroughly baked and brown on top. It will take about forty minutes to bake the biscuits because the sauce, vegetables and meat retard baking. Serve from baking dish.

WANTED ALL THE GOODIES

Teddy was about to enter his tenth year. His mother told him he might invite his little friends to a birthday party, and she made the necessary preparations. On the important evening they were waiting for the guests. Suddenly the youngest said: "Mother, don't you think it's time to eat the ice cream and cake now?"

"Certainly not, dear," she replied. "We must wait until your little friends are here."

"Well, I'll tell you the truth, mother," Teddy began. "I just thought that for once in my life I'd like to have all the ice cream and cake I wanted, so I guess we'd better begin now, because I didn't invite anybody."

Columbia W.A. Silver Tea—A silver tea will be held at the home of Mrs. J. R. Hartley, 1773 Ross Street, Poul Bay on Wednesday, from 3 to 6 p.m., under the auspices of the Columbia Diocesan Women's Auxiliary. This tea is in aid of the delegates' expense fund to the Dominion annual meeting to be held this year in Edmonton, Alberta, in October and all W.A. and church members and friends are cordially invited to attend.

The Wife-Ship Woman

By Hugh Pendexter
AUTHOR OF "KINGS OF THE MISSISSIPPI," "THE SCOUTS," "A VIRGINIA SCOUTER"

"Nothing, except to tell his people that the trail would be picked up when they left the bayou."

"He'll find no trail," I said.

"He'll find a woman missing, and there will be some signs left," declared Joe, now using the Choctaw trade jargon that the girl might not understand.

But I did not fear any such results. There was nothing known in New Orleans to connect me with the girl's disappearance. The settlers would testify that the girl was very sad, that she stepped out of a cabin and did not return. It would be believed that she had wandered away and fallen into the river, or become lost.

As for finding signs of our passing to and from the Indian village, the chances were his Choctaw would destroy any traces in tracking back and forth during the night. But the long river-bed was the logical one for an escaping English spy to take, once it was known he had not made for Pensacola; and I believed the Fox would make haste to cut me off from gaining the mouth of the Ohio.

The close air of the bayou was being freshened by a breeze from the lake. It was like emerging from a hot tunnel. Labrador's canoe withered among the brakes, and came to a stop, and as I drew abreast of him he announced:

"I return to la Nouvelle Orleans, my friends."

In the Choctaw jargon he added: "If they go north I shall trail them."

"They will go north," I assured him.

With that we parted, he to paddle up the bayou, while I look the girl into whatever danger Fate had stored for us once we quit the Iberville for the Mississippi.

I could not get used to mademoiselle. If she had impressed me as being slight and frail of physique on Ship Island, she now seemed little more than a child. For she had followed my advice, and had shifted from her funeral black gown to a garb more suitable for rough travel. From an Indian crone she had purchased some buckskins, a short skirt of fibre bark, stained white and red—the sacred colors of the Natchez—and completed her attire with a blouse of linen she had brought overseas. Her yellow hair was drawn back and arranged in braids. Her face would have been boyish if not for the sensitive mouth and the sad eyes.

"And this river flows from the great river," she asked for the tenth time as we made our way up the Iberville.

"It is merely a mouth of the Mississippi at high water. It flows into Lake Maurepas, where we camped and I showed you the cross cut by Iberville a score of years ago."

She was silent for some time, and then proved she was observing by saying:

"Monsieur does not look behind him. Now I look back behind him. Now I look back every few minutes, thinking to be behind the savages."

"There is nothing behind us to fear. Little one. It is when we strike into the Mississippi that we shall keep our eyes wide open."

"It is terrible, this great river that we seek," she murmured.

She was behind me on the bundle of blankets. I heard a suspicious sound as she glanced back to find her striving to muffle a sudden outburst of sob by lying face down on the blankets.

"Hush!" I sternly commanded. "The great river is our good friend. It is so big and wide we can hide from our enemies without leaving it."

"I hate it!" she fiercely whipped back, lifting her head and glaring angrily at me through her tears. I hated it while at the cabin of Mariot and his family. I wish we could travel afoot overland to the coast. Why must we go the long way around when we could travel overland?"

"To save time," I told her with a smile. "We haven't time to go the shortest way. There are more than 10,000 warriors between the river and Carolina. There are a scant 4,000 of those who will admit any feeling of friendship for the English. We must go nearly to the coast before we will be free from the red danger; for there are no settlements in the valley of Virginia. In the valley of the Shenandoah the Catawbas and Cherokees take southern scalps. I do not say these things to add to your uneasiness, Mademoiselle Dahlgarde, but to indicate how widespread is the danger, and to show the need of traveling by water as far as possible."

"Forgive me. You are very wise," she sighed, raising her big eyes to stare into mine. "I have seen so little of life. I am so ignorant."

I faced to the front and scowled at the bend ahead. For the time I had fallen beneath the spell and had forgotten she was not an unsophisticated child. Her plain ignorance did not harmonize with the mystery behind her, nor with the disturbing testimony of her soft hands coupled to poverty. "I have said something which displeases monsieur," she timidly asked.

I flashed a mechanical smile over my shoulder, shook my head, and explained: "We now come to the great river, the Mississippi. I am positive the man Damoan and his Indians are coming up the river to look for me. I have paddled hard to make the big river ahead of them. Now I am wondering if it is wise to go ahead of them."

"But how can we flee from them unless we go ahead?" she exclaimed.

"If they are ahead and we can follow them I should like it better," I replied.

"Oh, la! la! To think of that!"

And for the moment she was an entirely new and fascinating young woman. She laughed softly and with such zest that I was amazed and thrilled.

"Oh, monsieur! Now I do feel safe when you can plan so shrewdly," she cried. "To be sure! They seek us ahead of them, their eyes are all to the front, and we come softly after them, like a cat stalking after the mouse."

"The big river? Fool! I will not be afraid of it any more."

"How old are you?" I shot over my shoulder.

"Sixteen. Twenty in December," she promptly replied.

"Have you paused to think what people will say when they are told you traveled with me from the Mississippi to the coast?"

Her grave eyes stared at me in deep perplexity, and I could have kicked myself for putting the question.

"What will they say?" she slowly repeated, with a little frown wrinkling her brow. "Certainly they will say Monsieur Brampton is a most kind and compassionate gentleman to help a poor girl find a place of safety."

I was glad to be out of this easily, and to prevent her taking time to analyze the query and arrive at a more world-wise conclusion, I spoke of Sir Pinner. Her face reflected terror, and she whispered:

"That man is the devil, or the devil's man! It is because of him that I wear this!"

And from her blouse she pulled a small dirk in a sheath and secured by a string around her slim neck.

"He has a pirate's name in New Orleans?"

"The French gentleman, the one who gave me your note and who went away before I could thank him, kept very close to the bad one. But I do not think the bad one wished to take with me in New Orleans. However, he will follow me if he can."

"But what has he got to do with you? How long have you known him?"

"Know him, monsieur?" she gasped, eying me in amazement. "One does not know such cattle."

As she finished her scowl of confusion suffused her face, and she turned her head and said:

"He did not bother me on the ship. But over here, in this country, if a man is strong and has a black heart—"

"And has been a pirate," I suggested.

"Yes, yes. He has been a pirate! Terrible stories he told on the voyage over! He has done monstrous things. He is still a pirate in his evil heart!"

This perverted explanation deceived me none; she had not thought of him as a pirate until I gave her the idea. And my righteous indignation when I assumed she had known him in the past! It was all most bewildering. My estimate of her had ranged from a street gamin to a refined and worldly-ignorant child. If appearances and speech went for anything, she possessed the hauteur of the lady and the ignorance of the child. If her conflicting stories of how she came to be on the Maure, her obvious poverty, and her useless hands were to be considered, there could remain only the hateful conclusion that she was a product of the streets, and that life had been horribly unfair to her.

"We land here, mademoiselle," I announced, drawing up to the bank. "The river is just ahead. I must ask you to stay here while I look about a bit."

"Stay here alone?" she exclaimed, glancing about as if expecting to find danger in her innocent surroundings.

"You will be safe. I would not leave you if there was any danger. Here is my pistol. If you feel very much afraid you can fire it."

"It is all so strange, you will have the good heart to excuse me. I do not care for the weapon. Go."

This was delivered with the poise and composure of a mature woman. And yet when I reached the bend and stole a backward glance and saw her standing where I had left her, her hands clasped before her, her head bent in mournful attitude, she became a child again. I suddenly was loath to leave her there disconsolate, thinking she might be frightened during my absence.

I pushed forward rapidly, and at last stood on the shore of the Mississippi. I stood for a moment looking across its broad expanse, then I was on my hands and knees among the bushes, watching two procreants turning the bend ahead.

The one ahead was large and filled with Indians. In the second were three men, two of whom were white men. I hastily retreated a considerable distance.

Secure in my new position, I waited for the procreants to cross my line of vision; and as I watched I was startled by a light step behind me. Wheeling apprehensively, I was in time to detect a slight motion in the bushes. I crawled toward the bushes to investigate, but before I could reach them Mademoiselle Dahlgarde stepped into view into view, also of anyone on the river passing the Iberville. I grabbed one of her be-legged ankles and yanked her to the ground and glared savagely as she would have opened her mouth to scream. Then toward the Mississippi I turned to learn the worst. The Choctaws were gazing upstream.

None was looking in our direction. But in the other came one of the white men was touching the Indian on the shoulder. The Indian ceased paddling and stood up and peered under his hand toward our hiding-place. Then he dropped on his knees and resumed paddling. The white man, who had been suspicious, gesticulated with the other white man, who gazed toward our hiding-place, then sank back.

His companion, not yet satisfied, stood up and fed his hawklike gaze on the thick growth; hawklike, because he was Damoan the Fox. And he thought he had seen something. His companions were a blanket over his shoulders and had his hat pulled low, and I could not make out his features. The Fox reluctantly resumed his paddling, but so long as the Iberville was in sight he looked back.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

1878 B&K 1928

TWENTY YEARS OLD: Few people to-day have not read or have not been told of that awful "Trail of '98" into the Klondyke. The Artist has tried to give a glimpse of the road in.

Further great developments took place in the Province at this time. New Parliament Buildings were erected in Victoria—the Bridge over the Fraser at New Westminster was completed—the Grand Trunk chose Prince Rupert as its Pacific Terminal—the Cable was laid across the Pacific—Electric Trams connected Vancouver and New Westminster—the "Empress of India" started C. P. R. regular ocean service to the Orient. Truly the great spirit of the Pioneer was dominant in these days, and the foundation of the Province of British Columbia was well and truly laid.

The BRITISH COLUMBIAN'S BREAKFAST:

After years of experimenting the B & K Co. at their new Cereal Mill erected in Victoria in 1891 perfected their "Extra Cream" Rolled Oats. At the Great World's Fair in Chicago and at the Mid-Winter Fair, San Francisco, in competition with the World, B & K (Extra Cream) Rolled Oats carried off the Highest Awards with Gold Medals.

From that time on, B & K became a Household word in the West and the popularity of B & K Cereals has never waned. Absolutely the finest Porridge—then and now—made from Fraser Valley Oats, with a flavor and mellowness that is unsurpassed anywhere. Perfect Milling of Perfect Oats gives the people of British Columbia a morning Porridge that is looked forward to, every day, in every home.

Then B & K Wheat Flakes came on the market, a most delicious Wheat Cereal. New lines of Poultry and Stock Feeds were turned out, making a complete range of Cereal Foods and Feeds for every purpose.

CAPITOL STORY HAS UNDERWORLD SETTING

"Cheating Cheaters" Tells of Gang of Crooks Who Chase Loot Through Maze of Adventures; Plot Is Strong and Has Able Cast With Pretty Betty Compson as Star of Feminine Side

Reporting to the clearest race ever used in the profession, two gangs of crooks from New York's underworld invade the haunts of millionaires in the latest Universal-Jewel production, "Cheating Cheaters," to be shown at the Capitol Theatre beginning to-day, when they endeavor to stage a great jewel robbery under a cloak of innocence.

Betty Compson plays the most intriguing role of her career when she plays Kenneth Harlan and she alone is responsible for the much-tangled affair which makes this picture so exceedingly interesting from the opening title to the final fade-out.

Romance, comedy and thriller go along make up one of the greatest combinations ever introduced in a crook production.

The other members in the "crooked" cast are Maude Turner Gordon, Sylvia Ashton, Erwin Connelly, Eddie Gribbon,

No Movies for This DeMille Girl—She Dances Toward a Stage Career

The daughter of one of the most prominent personalities has been discovered among the struggling thousands seeking to carve Broadway

She is Agnes DeMille, daughter of William DeMille, and niece of Cecil DeMille. When she began, some years ago, by appearing to the movies, she found both her father and uncle in kindly and philosophical opposition.

"Father insisted that I should become a writer; that I should go to college and keep away from the Kleigs," she explained in her dressing room at the Romy Theatre. "They have never made me any sort of an offer to appear with their companies. But they will see that I am serious. I'm proving it."

DIDN'T LIKE WRITING

And so she's been starting at the bottom of the ladder and making her way up purely on personal merit. Like a dutiful daughter, she did go to college. But she decided that she couldn't write anything that pleased her much. And she was very much interested in dancing. She found her mother sympathetic to her plans, she says. So she began to take dancing lessons. Then she came to New York and achieved a part in a Moort-open then playing.

"I had wanted the critics to notice my work and give some criticism of it," she explained. "But they all left at 11 o'clock and I didn't come on until quarter of an hour later. I got no notice. Yes, I was disappointed.

"I found I could make my own way by giving special performances, but I wanted to give myself a definite trial. So I saved my money and went into small New Mexico cities for a tour. My mother went with me. I danced on a stage that had been a prize-light ring. The floor was so bad we had to get down on hands and knees and putty the cracks. My experience there put at rest my doubts.

ONE OF MANY

"Last Winter, when Reinhardt was putting on his productions, I went into the ballet just to get experience with a great director. I was just one of the hundreds who danced in the background. But I learned a lot watching his dancers work."

At present she has a fantastic little dance kit in which she plays the part of an awkward pupil getting instruction from a ballet master. It is part of the diversissement preceding a motion picture production. She has to appear at from four to six shows a day.

But she is twenty-two, and hence does not mind. She insists that her efforts to make her own way have caused no serious difference with her father. And some day, she hopes, she will be able to make him see that she is worthy of his serious attention as a performer.

Old Soak" which is now running at the Variety Theatre.

Says Jean Hersholt: "These darn fools who never drank don't know how good water is." The cast of this picture includes George Lewis, June Marlowe, William V. Mong, Gertrude Astor, Louise Fazenda, Lucy Beaumont, Adda Gleason, George Siegmann, Tom Ricketts and Arnold Gregg.

Barthelmess Is Star in Drama Of Great Appeal

Has Powerful Role Playing With Alice Joyce Who Takes "Mother" Part

A mysterious telephone call over the private wire of the governor saves a boy's life at dawn! This is one of the big scenes in First National's "The Noose," now at the Columbia Theatre, with Richard Barthelmess in the starring role. The highly dramatic scenes that ensue bring together two of the screen's cleverest players—Richard Barthelmess, the star, and Alice Joyce, favorite of the films, who is cast as his mother, the Governor's wife.

Miss Joyce was selected for the role because her dramatic ability and sympathetic rendition of emotional roles. Her work in "The Noose" stands out as the best she has done in a long and eventful screen career, and will win her many friends among screen patrons.

John Francis Dillon directed the picture, and a large and capable cast is seen in support of the star. Included among the players are Lina Basquette, who plays opposite the star; Thelma Todd, Montagu Love and Robert E. O'Connor.

TOLMIE TO SPEAK TO NEWSPAPER MEN
Hon. S. F. Tolmie, Premier-designate of British Columbia, will address a dinner meeting of the British Columbia Institute of Journalists at the Hotel Georgia, Vancouver, on Wednesday. Dr. Tolmie will speak on general topics, delivering his first speech since his success in the recent provincial election.

CONVENTION BIG SUCCESS

Pacific Northwest Realtors Impressed With Results and City's Hospitality

The majority of the delegates to the Pacific Northwest Realtors' Association assembled here for conference last week have left for their homes in neighboring states. They concluded their business sessions here Friday and spent Saturday in recreation. Before the convention leaders left they expressed an entire satisfaction with the results of the gathering and pleasure at the welcome Victoria extended to them. "This has been one of the finest and most profitable conventions in the history of this organization," said W. Zimmerman, executive secretary of the Pacific Northwest organization.

PRESIDENT PLEASED
"I think we are all very much impressed with the great good that these gatherings of the profession accomplish," said Henry G. Zander, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, who came here from Chicago to address the party. "And I am sure that this particular convention is unusually profitable because it comes at a time when the whole of the district represented at its sessions is entering upon an era of activity and prosperity never before seen in the history of the Pacific Northwest."

WELL PLEASED
The ladies of the convention party, some of them the wives of delegates, others of them actually engaged in the real estate business, were pleased and happy at the reception given to them here.

WINS TROPHY
The last events on the convention programme were the two golf tournaments on Saturday. At the Victoria

Barney Oldfield, One-time Speed King of Auto Racing, Plays At Playhouse

"The First Auto," the Warner Bros. extended run production, is now at the Playhouse Theatre. Roy Del Ruth directed the picture which features Barney Oldfield, old-time speed king, and Patay Ruth Miller who has never been more captivating than as Rose Robbins, daughter of the doughty Mayor of Maple City.

The story is laid in the days when horseless carriages were beginning to displace horses and arousing antipathy in the breasts of such as old Hank Armstrong, lover of horse-flesh, and father of a headstrong son, who both loved Rose Robbins, and got himself a car! Hank cast him out of home for the latter outrage. Bob went to another town, learned auto mechanics, in as far as that branch was then known and returned to Maple City as the "Red Demon," a racer.

Hank was fooled by another lover of Rose Robbins, into trying to wreck the racer's car. The attempt was successful, and then Hank found that the injured racer was his own son. This

GRIPPING DETECTIVE TALE AT DOMINION NOW

George Bancroft Is Star of Thrilling Underworld Picture: Story Deals With Detective-sergeant's Temptation and His War Against a Band of Crooks and Desperadoes: Plays All Week

They offered him $5,000 a month to make in "The Drag Net," the picture which is now at the Dominion Theatre. The choice he makes is to throw away his detective's badge, turn against society, and join with the underworld crooks. It was wealth and the love he wanted more than anything else against honor.

George Bancroft, as detective Lieutenant Two-Gun Nolan, has that dederworld," and then repeated with another outstanding success in "The Last Days of Pompeii." He is not the only member of "The Drag Net" cast who played in "Underworld," however. Evelyn Brent was the leading woman in that picture, and she is the girl of "The Drag Net." Powell, who played in "Underworld," is also in this picture. William Powell takes the part of the crook's partner.

DANCE DERBY IN WINDSOR, ONTARIO

Windsor, Ont., July 23.—Mary Bourassa, formerly of Windsor and now living in Detroit, and Victor St. Armand of Windsor won the $500 prize in the International Dance Derby here, which ended Saturday before a thousand spectators, after the two last couples had danced eighteen miles in six hours. They had been dancing since last Monday night in one hour periods, with fifteen-minute rest periods between. Mary Young and Frank Deacy of Windsor, who finished second, were thrown aside by the crowd in silver and bills to make a second prize. Sixteen couples started last Monday and several of these quite when they temporarily lost their senses.

POLICE ON FLOOR

The last few hours of the race saw Deacy escorted by city policemen to prevent him from fighting St. Armand, who had accidentally brushed against him in lapping during the races.

There is an insistent demand by Aldermen, citizens and clergy that a city by-law be enacted to prevent further exhibitions of the sort, in view of the scene that occurred during the week.

The promoters, A. M. Schulte and Harry Glascock, both of Chicago, claim to have lost $2,000 on the event, but have declined to announce their expenses or receipts.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily and the Doll House

(By) HUGHES K. GARDNER

Once upon a time, as Baby Bunty was hopping across the green meadow, she passed near the corner of a fence. Deep down in the grass a dandelion flower was growing. Nodding its yellow head in the wind, the dandelion seemed to be laughing.

"What is the joke?" asked Baby Bunty, who always liked anything with fun in it. "Tell me so I can laugh, please, Dandelion."

"I was laughing," answered the flower, "because I have just guessed the answer to the puzzle Uncle Wiggily gave me the other day. Look here," and nodding its yellow head the dandelion pointed to where, on the smooth fence post, the rabbit had drawn three pictures.

"Uncle Wiggily said I could guess animals' names from these puzzle pictures," went on the dandelion, "and I have. There is a target, or Bullseye, and, of course, a BULL is an animal. Then there is the Cattail plant and the Monkeywrench—Bull, Cat and Monkey."

"That makes three animals," said Bunty, laughing with the flower.

"You are a cute little rabbit," said the dandelion, looking at Bunty. "How would you like to have a doll-house to play with?"

"Oh, how lovely!" exclaimed the little orphan rabbit, clapping her paws. "But where could I get a doll-house around here?" she asked.

"There is one up in that tree," answered the dandelion. The flower nodded its yellow head at a large oak growing near the fence corner. On a limb, not far above the ground, but still much higher than Bunty's head, was what seemed to be a cute little house made of bark, with a small round hole on one side.

"There is a doll-house," went on the dandelion. "I don't know who made it or how it got up in the tree, but there it is and if you want it you may have it."

"Oh, thank you," said Bunty politely. "It is a very cute doll-house, but it is so small I think it will only do for my teeny weeny rubber doll. You see I can squeeze her so she will push through that little front door," and Bunty looked at the tiny opening in the side of the bark house up in the tree.

"Yes, you may have that house for your little rubber doll," said the dandelion.

"But how am I going to get it down?" asked Bunty.

"Oh, don't give me any more puzzles or riddles," said the dandelion. "You are as bad as Uncle Wiggily, or I should say as good, for he was kind to me. But I don't know how you are going to get that doll-house down."

"I don't, either," said Bunty. "I'll have to ask Uncle Wiggily. It isn't exactly a puzzle, but it might be."

She was just going to hop away to find the old rabbit gentleman when, all of a sudden, along came hopping Mr. Longears himself. He had come to see if the dandelion flower was growing after he had planted it again.

"How can I get that doll-house down, Uncle Wigg?" asked Bunty.

"Reach up and pick it as you would

"But I'm not big enough to reach!" sighed Bunty, stretching up her paws. "I need a ladder."

"Well, why don't you get a ladder then?"

"Where is one?" Bunty wanted to know.

Uncle Wiggily laughed and pointed toward a cute little fairy house.

"There is a ladder," he said. And there was one, thought it was hidden in a puzzling sort of way. See if you can find it. And if you can, and if the chimney doesn't smoke so much

Superman Needed To Knock Heeneey Out In Opinion of Dempsey

Former Heavyweight Champion Visits Camp of Challenger and Says That Tom Has Better Than Even Chance; Great Crowd Watches Heeneey Perform and Makes Him Nervous; Tunney Shows Single Flash of How He Proposes to Knock Out Heeneey in the Early Rounds With Right-hand Punches

Fairhaven, N.J., July 23.—It will take a "superman" to knock out Tom Heeneey, in the opinion of Jack Dempsey, after watching the workout of the challenger for Gene Tunney's heavyweight crown yesterday. Dempsey expressed his opinion that Heeneey had "better than an even chance" of defeating the champion.

Dempsey, the former champion, attracted a crowd of 2,000 persons to the training camp. He watched the challenger flounder through four rounds of boxing, during which lefts and rights bounced off his chin. Heeneey, in the judgment of experts, looked off color in his two rounds with James J. Braddock, but seemed to find the range against James J. Lawless, who boxed the last two rounds.

"He looks to be in great shape," Dempsey said. "He is strong and rugged and apparently has lots of stamina. He can take a punch and give a punch. If you can do that, you've got a chance."

Dempsey, faultlessly attired, was almost mobbed by the crowd which fought to surround him as soon as he reached the camp.

CONFIDENT IN HEENEY
After the perspiring New Zealander went to his quarters for a rub-down, Dempsey was closeted with him alone, except for Jimmy Hennessey, his trainer, for about fifteen minutes. Then Promoter Tex Rickard joined them. If Dempsey gave Heeneey any pointers on his fight both kept it to themselves.

Dempsey was a guest of Rickard who made the trip from New York in his yacht. Rickard's guests also included Colonel Theodore Roosevelt Jr., Kermit Roosevelt, Roy W. Howard, Bernard Gimbel and others.

The cauliflower brigade was led by Sammy Mandell, world's lightweight champion; Mickey Walker, middleweight titleholder, and Tommy Loughran, holder of the world's light-heavyweight title; Eddie Kane, Jimmy Johnson, New York boxing manager; Jack McAuliffe, once light-weight champion.

During the workout, Gertrude Ederle, first woman to swim the English Channel, sat at the edge of the ring, unnoticed except by a few friends.

NERVOUS AT START
Heeneey started his exercise with a round of rope skipping, two rounds of bag punching and one of shadow boxing. His handlers said the challenger was at a high nervous tension because of his eagerness to make an impressive showing in the critical eyes of Dempsey.

The New Zealander mainly tried to sacrifice at least one sparring man in his effort to turn the occasion into a Heeneey day, but he failed. Braddock, thirty pounds lighter than the challenger, had no trouble in hitting him with left jabs and right uppercuts. Braddock had Tom's headgear sliding down over his eyes so he impatiently brushed it off and fought the remainder of the first round without any protection. He received a clean right hand round with his headgear on and made good use of a right hand uppercut, landing with it almost every time they clinched.

By the time Lawless went into the ring, Heeneey apparently had overcome some of his nervousness for he set the pace, continually charged in and nailed the Harrison heavyweight with a hard race of punches. Lawless was bleeding from the mouth at the start of their second round. They finished up in a wild slug-fest, with Lawless getting the better of the exchange.

Speculator, N.Y., July 22.—Before a thousand drenched spectators, Gene Tunney yesterday ignored the rain and went through the second of his three-round workout for the defense of his heavyweight title against Tom Heeneey next Thursday night.

Ever since last May when Tunney started extensive training the champion has been boxing good, bad and indifferent, mostly the latter. He was impressive Saturday night, but was yesterday but the action that revealed the real Tunney lasted about three seconds on his second round with Harold Mays, the Bayonne heavyweight.

Tunney and Mays went through the first round as they have done many times before at a fair speed. Gene was hitting hard and clean but was backed back enough time to encourage Mays to mix with him.

A FLASH
The pair rested for a minute and started again. Then came the real Tunney. Making his face with a snarl and gritting his teeth, the champion drew Mays out of position with a left feint and then shot three swift right hooks to the sparring partner's jaw. Mays staggered under them but the heavy training gloves had absorbed most of their force.

Tunney then relaxed and continued boxing in his usual easy fashion through the remainder of the second and third rounds, with Mays, and three more with Billy Vidabeck, the other member of the sparring stable.

The flare-up many thought revealed Tunney's plan to achieve his reported ambition to knock out Heeneey early in his fifteen-round bout. Jimmy Bronson, the champion's chief second, described the flaring outburst as the best bit of boxing Tunney has uncovered since the last Dempsey fight.

LEVEL ANY HEAVYWEIGHT
Tunney intends to defend his title like a true champion by knocking out Tom Heeneey in one of the early rounds.

The three blows delivered by Tunney when he opened up, according to the consensus of the newspaper men, many of whom were fresh from Heeneey's training quarters, would have leveled any heavyweight in the world, if Tunney were wearing regulation

Pop Bottles And Cushions Rain; Police Needed

Los Angeles, July 23.—An avalanche of cushions and pop bottles which fans sent flying into the playing field to express their ire at the umpire's decision at the end of the first game of yesterday's double-header between San Francisco and Hollywood, caused the second contest to be played with a squad of policemen on guard.

San Francisco took both contests, the first 4 to 3, and the second 5 to 2, the double victory giving them the odd game of the series.

The fans staged their riot when Umpire Kolls ruled that Johnson had caught Rhem's line drive for the third out of the final inning of the first game. Johnson later admitted he trapped the ball and spectators along the left field side of the stands started the cushion and bottle barrage. Later, they surged out on the field and chased all three umpires into their dressing rooms.

Had Kolls not ruled Johnson caught the ball, Hollywood would have won, for two runs crossed the plate on the play.

When the umpires came on the field at the start of the second game, the missiles again flew despite the police guard and the game was delayed ten minutes.

The second game went ten innings, the Seals winning when Jolley started the final inning with his thirtieth homer of the season. Three more hits followed to bring in two more runs.

AMATEUR TENNIS PLAYERS MAKING MORE THAN PROS

George Wightman Says Good Amateur Makes as High as $25,000 a Year

Says Tilden Will Get Away With It Once More By Promising to Be Good

London, July 23.—Decision of the United States Lawn Tennis Association to drop W. T. Tilden from the Davis Cup team will stand, according to Samuel H. Colman, president of the U.S.L.T.A., who reached London today from Paris.

"The dropping of Bill Tilden from the Davis Cup team may or may not mean we lose the Davis Cup this year," said Colman, "but it will have to stand. Tilden has not been absolutely disqualified. Charges have been brought before the executive committee and until they are determined it was deemed best to withdraw Tilden from the Davis Cup play."

New York, July 23.—Officials of the United States Lawn Tennis Association agreed with President Samuel H. Colman in his decision not to play W. T. Tilden on the United States Davis Cup team and had so advised President Colman by cable.

Boston, July 23.—George W. Wightman, former president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, yesterday joined in the discussion over the removal of William T. Tilden from the United States Davis Cup team with a prediction that "Big Bill" will get by the violation of the player-writer rule that resulted in his disbarment.

Wightman was vice-president of the American Olympic committee until July 10, when he resigned after Charles Paddock had been given a place on the team. At that time he criticized the committee for permitting an athlete to represent the United States "when he is notoriously under suspicion as an amateur."

In a statement yesterday, Wightman said a successful professional tennis player could not expect to earn more than about 5,000 a year, but an amateur player "who is prominent enough, can earn $15,000 a year and probably as high as $20,000 or $25,000."

"His earnings are syndicated to several hundred newspapers and his gross return in cash is amazing," Wightman said. "Apart from the amateur rules, he said, a fundamental issue was how much more an amateur should earn than a professional."

"Those who want Tilden to play," he said, "are saying in effect that he should be allowed to be allowed to bring his annual cash return up to about four to six times as much as professionals."

WILL GET BY
"Yes, Tilden will get by his recent violation of the rule (which rule, by the way, he drafted himself) because he will again promise to be good and not break the rule in the future. Certainly an amateur can not afford to draw the pay of a mere professional when, by getting back into amateur tournaments, he can make from three to six times as much money."

INCREASED EARNINGS

Will Have Much Support

TOM HEENEY

All flint followers in the British Empire will be pulling for Heeneey when he enters the ring at the Polo Grounds, New York, on Thursday night for his fight with Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion. Heeneey is not fabled by many fight experts to win so this may help him as the experts have a bad habit of picking the wrong man. Heeneey is in great shape for his fight, but he will find a job on his hands to defeat Tunney, who, if he gets into a tight corner, will run like a deer.

Faber, Like Other Old Pitchers, Bears Down On Yankees and Wins

Hurlers With Brains Give World's Champions Most Trouble; Chicago White Sox Halt Their Winning Streak; Chicago Cubs Turn Back Giants Before 51,000 Fans and Entrench Themselves in Second Place; St. Louis Continue to Win

It's the pitchers with baseball brains that give the Yankees the most trouble—the veterans like old Jack Quinn, Sad Sam Jones, George Uhle and Urban Faber, whose right arm has been puzzling American League swatmen for many years—fifteen, to be exact. Urban's fast one may have lost most of its zip and that curve may not be what it was ten years ago, but backed by a brain that tells him where to put each ball and the control to obey his brain's directions "Red" is doing very well indeed.

After the Yanks had taken the first three games of the current series with the Chicago White Sox, Faber took up the task of stopping the champs and saving something out of the wreckage.

PITCHED SKILLFULLY
The Yanks hit him hard and often, but the veteran's courage and brain, as well as his fast, carterd the Sox through to a 6-4 victory. Incidentally, the change saw a eight-game winning streak snapped. As usual, "Red" pitched skillfully and successfully to Babe Ruth, who made four official trips to the plate and batted precisely nothing flat. Faber's single in the eighth broke up a 4-4 tie and scored two runs.

After a disastrous visit to Philadelphia, the third place St. Louis Browns got out of their slump with an 8 to 5 win over the Cleveland Indians yesterday.

Washington went into fifth place, two games back of the White Sox, by taking Detroit's measure, 8 to 2.

CUBS STRENGTHEN HOLD
In the National League, the Chicago Cubs strengthened their hold on second place when Charlie Root held the New York Giants to four hits and won 4-2, before 51,000 fans. The Cubs failed to gain any ground on the St. Louis Cardinals, however, for the Phillies reverted to type and bowed to the league-leaders, 8 to 7.

For the third straight time the Cincinnati Reds trimmed the Boston Braves by one run. The score this time was 5 to 4.

The Pittsburgh Pirates and Brooklyn Dodgers split even in a double bill at Brooklyn yesterday.

Danny Vance was in form in the first game, allowing the Pirates only four hits and fanning eight men. The Dodgers carried off a 6-0 decision.

Ray Kremer enabled the Pirates to make an even break when he out-pointed five Robin pitchers and won, 6 to 5.

DOUBLES DO IT
Successive doubles in the ninth inning by Douthitt and Holm enabled the Cards to make off with their third victory in the four-game series with Philadelphia to-day, 8-7. Hurler hit for the circuit on Sherdel's first pitch in the ninth to tie the count at 7 after a nip and tuck battle of hits.

Yesterday's results were:

Canucks Show Good Form In Their Trials

Amsterdam, July 23.—Canadian Olympic millers, quarter-millers and hurdlers had a forty-five-minute try-out early yesterday, while the marathon team walked over the official course. Cliff Bricker, the Galt runner, showing the way.

Doral Pilling, of Cardston, Alberta, was out with the javelin throwers for a short period, flinging his shoulder blades well oiled and in good working order.

The Canadian girls spent the day in repose, respecting the Sabbath, but their American sisters were early on the job.

All the American contestants are working lightly except Lloyd Hahn, who is considered the best bet for the 200 metres. Ray Conger and Roy Watson are said to be the strongest possibilities for the 1,500 metres.

The Australians have been training fitfully. James Carlton in the 100 and 200 metres has been sprouting very well.

AMERICANS KICKING AGAIN
The crowded conditions for practice were the second feature of the Olympic facilities here in which Coach Robertson was registered dissatisfaction. The soft condition of the Olympic field having drawn sharp criticism from him on Friday.

The American hunt for more practice fields resulted in one belonging to the American police and another to the firemen being placed at their disposal. Cows graze in the firemen's field and the owners have informed the Olympic authorities that casualties from flying hammers and other heavy artillery will have to be paid for.

FRENCH PICKED TO RETAIN CUP

United States Tennis Team Has No Chance to Lift Davis Cup Says Experts

Hennessey and Lott to Play in Singles; Italians Win But One Match

Paris, July 23.—The United States, as a result of its decisive victory over the Italians, has reached the Davis Cup challenge round for the ninth successive year but for the first time the Americans are conceded but little chance of winning the trophy.

Experts consider that whatever chances they had of beating the French in the final, starting Friday, hinge on the fleeting hope that "Big Bill" Tilden will be restored to good standing, at least temporarily.

But even with Tilden in the line-up the Americans face a combination of French strength which appears next to impossible to overthrow this season or for some years to come. Unless there is some break in the French ranks, which seems unlikely, they appear strong enough to repulse any threat now on the horizon.

If Tilden is not reinstated, Hennessey will be the bulwark of the American attack at the end of the week.

It is likely that George Lott, the Chicago star, will be nominated for the second singles role in the challenge round.

Auteuil, France, July 21.—Italy's last victorious gesture in 1928 Davis Cup competition yesterday afternoon came too late. Playing as though the inter-zone series had not decided on Saturday by the third straight American triumph, Baron Humbert de Morpurgo, mainstay of the Italian team, emerged from his slump of the last two days and conquered Francis T. Hunter in five grueling sets under a broiling sun. The scores were 6-4, 6-8, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

After de Morpurgo's triumph Placido Gaslini displayed the first effective game he has shown in the inter-zone round extending John Hennessey to the limit before yielding 7-5, 6-3, 6-4.

Italy thus saved itself from the wreckage of the first two days, during which it was completely outclassed, but in spite of the last minute rally, the final result, four to one, in American favor, is convincing enough proof of the superiority of the American team.

Donaldson Rows Near Dead Heat in Sculling Race With Portlander

Del Debrisay, of Portland, the Defending Champion, Awarded Senior Sculling Honors of N.P.A.A.O. by Judges, Who Decide He Was One Yard Ahead of Local Boy at Finish; J.B.A.A. Senior Four Judge Pace Wrongly and Finish Third, Portland Bow Man Collapsing to Lose Race to Vancouver Juniors

Special to The Times
Portland, Ore., July 23.—The Vancouver Rowing Club's dashing four-oared crew which advanced to eligibility for the senior race by winning the junior event Friday, added to its laurels on Saturday with a stirring victory in the senior four race, feature event of the two-day regatta here of the North Pacific Association of Amateur Oarsmen.

It was the most exciting event of the two-day programme, as well, with the Vancouver ex-juniors just barely nosing it out in front. From beginning to end this race, over the regular Henley course of approximately one and one-third miles, was a fight between the shells of Portland and Vancouver, with Victoria pressing them both.

With only 100 yards to go, the Portland crew led by full length, Vancouver stepped up its stroke in a rollicking spurt, and it won the race, the Portland crew being unable to meet the challenge.

Something seemed to go wrong in the Portland shell, which suddenly veered off its course and yawed toward the far bank of the Willamette River. The difficulty became obvious when Luke Sens, bow oar, collapsed at the finish. By tremendous efforts the remaining three able-bodied members of the crew managed to get the shell straightened. They drifted over the finishing line just after Vancouver, with one final spurt, shot ahead by two lengths.

WAITED TOO LONG
Victoria came in rowing hard and picking up speed three lengths behind the drifting Portland shell.

Victoria was so strong at the finish that it was obvious that the crew lost second honors through the mistake of withholding their spurt too long. The rangy lads from James Bay were closing up on the Portlanders and crossed the line with all kinds of reserve strength left.

The winning crew was: Mason Rooke, stroke; Vernon Furber, No. 3; F. Smith, No. 2, and A. Bergman, bow. The time was 8:45, ten seconds slower than the same crew rowed the course the day before in winning the junior event.

VICTORIA WINS ONE EVENT
Vancouver won two of the five events on Saturday, making its regatta score seven out of ten races. Portland took two firsts on Saturday, and Victoria broke into the score with a victory in the senior doubles. A. Speed and C. Donaldson rowed a beautiful race, this event to beat out the Portland entry by a half length, Vancouver entering tenaciously to the stern of the Portland shell—Time, 9:44.8.

In the junior fours, the Northwest Portland, defending champion, nosed out Clyde Donaldson of Victoria, by about one yard after overcoming a long lead in the last quarter. Debrisay won second, after holding its own well at the start. The James Bay men expended so much effort in the first three-quarters, however, that they had nothing left for the finishing spurt.

LOCALS WORKED OUT
In the 140-pound fours Vancouver won easily by three lengths. Victoria was second, after holding its own well at the start. The James Bay men expended so much effort in the first three-quarters, however, that they had nothing left for the finishing spurt.

Quebec Soccer Eleven Winner
Toronto, July 23.—Montreal Canadian Nationals, champions of Quebec, by defeating Uster United, Ontario champions, Saturday, two goals to nothing, and winning the Connaught play-off by two goals to one, well-earned the right to carry the eastern banner into the play-off with New Ontario at Fort William next week, the next stepping stone to the Dominion final at Winnipeg.

Capture Sir Thomas Lipton Trophy For Third Successive Year
Winnipeg, July 23.—For the third year in succession, Winnipeg Rowing Club crews have proved themselves worthy holders of the Sir Thomas Lipton trophy, emblematic of the championship award of the Northwestern Rowing Association regatta.

Winning the trophy in 1927, the Winnipeg rowers repeated their triumph on Saturday, sweeping to victory in several of the major events to amass a total of 190.75 points, which gave them a lead of ninety-three points over St. Paul, their nearest rivals.

They were first to cross the line in the senior eights and doubles, the bantam fours, and were second in the junior doubles.

As on Friday, the first day of the regatta, St. Paul oarsmen, members of the Minnesota Rowing Club, provided the competition for the locals, the Minnecans capturing the junior doubles and placed second in the senior eights.

In the aggregate standing, which counted for position of the Lipton trophy, Minneapolis was third, Kenora fourth and Regina fifth.

The total point score, which includes Friday's and Saturday's events, followed:

Winnipeg, 190.75; St. Paul, 97.5; Minneapolis, 22; Kenora, 21; Regina, 12.

Jeffries Picks Tunney; Laughs At Present Crop

San Francisco, July 23.—James J. Jeffries, who dominated the heavyweight division in the days of yore, favors Gene Tunney to retain his title against Tom Heeneey. He figures that the champion will pick his way to a left-handed victory, but he gives Heeneey an outside chance—the landing of a wild swing—because he believes that any man with a punch has a chance to beat Tunney.

"I guess they have lost the mould," Jeff said in comparing the present-day fighters with the old-time battlers, "I can name you twenty-five of the old school who would beat Tunney."

The cauliflower brigade was led by Sammy Mandell, world's lightweight champion; Mickey Walker, middleweight titleholder, and Tommy Loughran, holder of the world's light-heavyweight title; Eddie Kane, Jimmy Johnson, New York boxing manager; Jack McAuliffe, once light-weight champion.

During the workout, Gertrude Ederle, first woman to swim the English Channel, sat at the edge of the ring, unnoticed except by a few friends.

NERVOUS AT START
Heeneey started his exercise with a round of rope skipping, two rounds of bag punching and one of shadow boxing. His handlers said the challenger was at a high nervous tension because of his eagerness to make an impressive showing in the critical eyes of Dempsey.

The New Zealander mainly tried to sacrifice at least one sparring man in his effort to turn the occasion into a Heeneey day, but he failed. Braddock, thirty pounds lighter than the challenger, had no trouble in hitting him with left jabs and right uppercuts. Braddock had Tom's headgear sliding down over his eyes so he impatiently brushed it off and fought the remainder of the first round without any protection. He received a clean right hand round with his headgear on and made good use of a right hand uppercut, landing with it almost every time they clinched.

By the time Lawless went into the ring, Heeneey apparently had overcome some of his nervousness for he set the pace, continually charged in and nailed the Harrison heavyweight with a hard race of punches. Lawless was bleeding from the mouth at the start of their second round. They finished up in a wild slug-fest, with Lawless getting the better of the exchange.

Speculator, N.Y., July 22.—Before a thousand drenched spectators, Gene Tunney yesterday ignored the rain and went through the second of his three-round workout for the defense of his heavyweight title against Tom Heeneey next Thursday night.

Ever since last May when Tunney started extensive training the champion has been boxing good, bad and indifferent, mostly the latter. He was impressive Saturday night, but was yesterday but the action that revealed the real Tunney lasted about three seconds on his second round with Harold Mays, the Bayonne heavyweight.

Tunney and Mays went through the first round as they have done many times before at a fair speed. Gene was hitting hard and clean but was backed back enough time to encourage Mays to mix with him.

A FLASH
The pair rested for a minute and started again. Then came the real Tunney. Making his face with a snarl and gritting his teeth, the champion drew Mays out of position with a left feint and then shot three swift right hooks to the sparring partner's jaw. Mays staggered under them but the heavy training gloves had absorbed most of their force.

Tunney then relaxed and continued boxing in his usual easy fashion through the remainder of the second and third rounds, with Mays, and three more with Billy Vidabeck, the other member of the sparring stable.

The flare-up many thought revealed Tunney's plan to achieve his reported ambition to knock out Heeneey early in his fifteen-round bout. Jimmy Bronson, the champion's chief second, described the flaring outburst as the best bit of boxing Tunney has uncovered since the last Dempsey fight.

LEVEL ANY HEAVYWEIGHT
Tunney intends to defend his title like a true champion by knocking out Tom Heeneey in one of the early rounds.

The three blows delivered by Tunney when he opened up, according to the consensus of the newspaper men, many of whom were fresh from Heeneey's training quarters, would have leveled any heavyweight in the world, if Tunney were wearing regulation

FORBES WINNER IN MOUND DUEL

Turns Back Chemainus Nine By 3-1 Score After Great Exhibition of Pitching

Forbes and Stickney Get Total of Thirty-three Strike-outs

In a real pitchers' battle the Victoria Capitals subdued Chemainus yesterday by the score of 3-1 at Chemainus. It was one of the best ball games seen in the Up-island town for many a day.

Norm Forbes, on the mound for Victoria, and Wes Stickney, who hurled for Chemainus, were both in great form, the latter being credited with seventeen strikeouts, while Forbes obtained sixteen. Of the ten batters who were hit, Chemainus getting six and Victoria four. Stickney walked six while Forbes gave two free passes to the initial sack.

CAPS FIELD WELL

The Capitals played airtight ball being behind Forbes not a single error being chalked up against them. Chemainus committed three miscues and a couple of them let in runs.

As a result of their victory the Caps obtained a strangle hold on the leadership of the lower section of the Vancouver Island League. They have two games to play, both at home, one against Chemainus and the other against Duncan. A victory in either game will give them the championship if their section and the right to play-off with the winners of the northern half for the championship of the league.

CAPS TAKE LEAD

The Capitals scored their first run in the sixth inning. Webster, first man up, singled past first base. He was sacrificed to second by Herb Cummins. Forbes then hit a first one against Duncan. A victory in either game will give them the championship if their section and the right to play-off with the winners of the northern half for the championship of the league.

WINNING RUNS

Victoria scored the winning runs in the eighth inning when they checked two runners home. Webster crashed out his third hit of the game. In trying to stop Webster from stealing second base, Chemainus catcher threw wild to the sack and Webster reached home before the ball was recovered. Forbes was walked and McKenna reached first on an error by Kasahara. Sallaway was given a life on McBride's error and the bases were filled. Stickney was unsteady and walked Bill More to force in a run. Outman the next batter struck out. Webster led the Victoria hitters with

Fifty Outside Players at Vancouver For Championships; Record Entry

Vancouver, July 23.—With nearly 150 matches on the schedule and a galaxy of outside stars, such as has never before visited Vancouver, or the West, the Western Canadian tennis championships got under way this morning at the Vancouver Lawn Tennis Club. More than fifty outside players have registered for the event, and the better part of them are real stars. The class of the Pacific Coast will be represented in this tourney.

WINNING RUNS

The first match started at nine o'clock this morning, and games will be played right up until seven o'clock, the last day being slated for 6:30. No matches of much importance will be witnessed on the first day, barring upsets of course.

BATSMEN STILL POUND BOWLERS

Bowling averages suffered again on Saturday afternoon as the batsmen in the Victoria and District Cricket League played merrily in the ball. The Victoria eleven subdued the Albions with a total of 193 for nine wickets to 171.

In the other match the Cowichan team defeated the Five C's by 197 to 118.

Mathews's 96, not out, for Cowichan, was the best batting performance of the day, while Cook's 67, not out, for Victoria was the next best.

Swimming Is the Best Exercise—But Do It Right

By THE ZITENFELD TWINS
Swim right or do not swim at all. That really should be the motto for folks who want to enjoy the water.

We are often asked, "Isn't it just terribly hard to swim as you girls do?"

We answer, "It is easy, because we learned the correct way first. Therefore, everything we have done since has helped us." For you merely lost time trying to flounder in the water expecting to find fins. A few simple directions, if grasped perfectly, can teach anyone the principles of swimming.

Men and woman take infinite pains to learn how to drive off in golf. They will spend days learning just how the different clubs should be held and swung and what the game is all about.

Learn the rules. The same is true in tennis. The rules are learned first. Each stroke means something. Children are taught how to serve, when to use backhand or overhead and so on. This holds for dancing also. No one is expected to dance just because his standing on a dance floor. He learns the steps before he starts out.

But swimming is a sport that really is not given a fair chance. Folks put on pretty bathing suits, expect to swim immediately and grow discouraged when they don't. That is the wrong attack. There are certain rules, much simpler than the rules of other enjoyable sports or games. Learn these first. They are easy to learn. You will be surprised how easy it is.

Aside from the pleasure, which is what we both think of first when swimming is mentioned, there is the health that is derived from constant swimming.

BEST EXERCISE
Swimming can do more for a person than any other single sport. If you are thin, swimming will fill you out. Especially if your neck is scrawny, you will be surprised how it rounds out from swimming. On the other hand, if you are overweight, swimming makes the pounds roll off.

Recently much work has been done to show how beneficial swimming is as a corrective for curvature of the spine, for legs left useless from infantile paralysis, and for other crippled conditions. Add to the physical good that swimming brings one the lift of spirit that a good swim induces, and you will agree with us when we advocate swimming for everyone.

Our advice is, however, "Learn how. Then swim, for health and happiness."

SOFTBALL

Games scheduled for this week in the Victoria Softball League are as follows:

Monday—New Method Laundry vs. St. Saviours, Central Park; umpire, Bob Whyte.

Tuesday—Cordova Bay vs. Cameron Lumber, Victoria West Park; umpire, E. Stock. Hillcrest vs. Foresters, Work Point Barracks; umpire, S. Redgrave and Bayliss, Hudson's Bay vs. Y.M.C.A., Central Park, lower diamond; umpire, Y.M.I. vs. Astor, Central Park, lower diamond; umpire, Bob Whyte.

Thursday—Wilson Bros. vs. Oak Bay, Central Park, lower diamond; umpire, W. White. Ladies' Sample Shop vs. Y.M.C.A., Central Park; upper diamond; umpire, E. Stock.

All games are scheduled to take place at 6:30 o'clock and the first mentioned team to supply a new ball. The games on Wednesday and Thursday are in the Peden Cup knockout series.

Games scheduled in the Westholme Soft Ball League are as follows:

Monday—Colonist vs. Crescent, at Willows ground; Langford vs. Colwood vs. Cresta, at Willows ground; Langford vs. Marigold vs. Times, at Victoria West Park.

Thursday—Marigold vs. Colonist, at Victoria West Park; Times vs. Langford, at Willows ground; Colwood vs. Cresta, at Willows ground.

SONS MEETING VETS TO-NIGHT

To-night's baseball attraction will be between the Sons of Canada, champions of the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League, and the Old-Timers. The game will be played at the Royal Athletic Park with the first ball being thrown at 8:15 o'clock.

Although the Sons have won the title for the second consecutive year there is still much interest in the remaining games. The Old-Timers having got into the stride, are anxious to win more games before the curtain drops.

Golf Title Won By Mountfield

Edmonton, July 23.—The ambition of all rising golfers was realized by Jimmie Mountfield, twenty-one-year-old holder of the Edmonton City championship, when he added the Western Canada amateur golf title to his record by virtue of a clear-cut victory over E. Colver, another local product, in the thirty-six-hole final of the event here on Saturday.

The match score was seven up and six to play.

Following are the new title holders: Western Canada Open—Tom McGrath, Moose Jaw, Sask.

Western Canada professional—Jimmie Mountfield, Edmonton, Alta.

Western Ladies' amateur—M. Mountfield, Edmonton, Alta.

Ladies' provincial—Mrs. W. E. Miller, Edmonton, Alta.

Alberta amateur—Phil Morse Saskatoon, Sask.

Western Canada junior—E. McPadden, Edmonton, Alta.

B.C. PLAYERS WIN MATCHES

Largest Entry List on Record For Canadian Lawn Tennis Championships

Toronto, July 23.—The thirty-fourth annual Canadian lawn tennis championships got off to a good start on Saturday afternoon, with the largest and most impressive entry that has ever featured a tennis event in the Dominion. Every province is represented and some of the leading players of the United States have invaded Toronto in quest of the titles.

Although out-of-town players were not called upon to appear until Monday, three prominent British Columbia players were seen in action—Gordon Shields, ranked No. 1 in British Columbia; T. D. Ryall of Vancouver and Miss Marjorie Leeming of Victoria. British Columbia's leading lady player. All won their first rounds with ease.

PLAY EXHIBITION MATCH
At the end of the afternoon an exhibition doubles match drew the crowd and produced a fine brand of tennis. Ryall and Shields of Vancouver paired together against Dr. Ham, Toronto, Davis Cup player and Walter Martin, Saskatchewan champion, now resident in Toronto. The match went to three closely contested sets, the Toronto boys winning by 6-4, 4-2, 6-3.

Players from outside points arrived in the city over the week-end and seven matches are scheduled to take place to-day in the men's and women's singles and doubles.

The first games are called for noon and four out-of-town players are on the draw. J. McCaughan and L. Carver of Edmonton, Gordon Pitt of Winnipeg and Marcel Rainville of Montreal.

ALL-BLACKS JUST WIN FROM AFRICA

Johnsburg, South Africa, July 23.—The New Zealand All-Blacks won the second rugby test match from South Africa Saturday by seven points to six.

German Husky Breaks Record

Essen, Germany, July 23.—Hans Hoffmeister, German weight throwing star, heaved the discus 48.77 metres (160 feet, 17-12 inches) here yesterday, breaking the listed world record of 157 feet 1-6-8 inches by nearly three feet. The present record was set in 1925 by Glenn Hartranft of the United States.

Two Yachts Have Even Chance to Win Race

Santander, Spain, July 23.—The sailing yacht Atlantic and Elena, two of the five craft that left New York harbor July 8, in the second division of a 3,000-mile race across the Atlantic Ocean to Santander, seemed yesterday to have equal prospects of victory.

Estimates of sailing time, based on reports from the two craft earlier this week, indicated that either might finish between Sunday and next Wednesday. No definite word was received from the yachts Saturday.

Bobby Jones on Golf

I should have been far enough off to be bunkered at the right.

On the next hole Chick missed a six-footer after going wide with a long approach putt, and I won with a par four. I was much encouraged now, and the gallery was becoming excited.

Chick's pitch to the thirty-second green left him twenty feet away, while mine mysteriously dropped down two feet from the hole. I won that one with another birdie and the match was square. The crowd was yelling now like a baseball gathering and running down the fairway to see what Chick and I were becoming excited, too, as much by the gallery, I think, as by the stand of the match.

I thought for a moment that I was going one up at the next hole. You see, Chick's position was now the hard one, for he was slipping away holes, and my star was rising. His iron shot stopped a full ten yards off the green and I had a hole-in-one for another birdie three. But Chick gamely chipped up to six feet and holed it while I was missing mine.

The next hole nearly ruined us both, and in the end the match was a draw. Chick's position was now the hard one, for he was slipping away holes, and my star was rising. His iron shot stopped a full ten yards off the green and I had a hole-in-one for another birdie three. But Chick gamely chipped up to six feet and holed it while I was missing mine.

UNEXPECTED TURN AT THIRTY-FIFTH HOLE
The thirty-fifth hole saw the final turn of the match, and it was a thrilling, and to me unexpected, finish. The hole was about 450 yards in length, requiring for us then two good wood shots. Chick's drive landed in the short rough to the right and mine to the left. We both took spoons. I got on again, and thought I had won, when Chick hooked to a deep grass ditch along the left side of the green.

I was away, although on the green. My long putt ran up about five feet below the hole. I remember feeling sorry for Chick as he set about playing the shot. He was obviously very nervous and took much pains to steady the ground. His effort was a good one under the circumstances, but not alarming to me, for it left me in a difficult downhill putt of about fifteen feet. I could not see how he could make it at that stage of the match.

But down it went, and my heart came up at the same time. If you have had a fellow hole a putt you simply knew he couldn't make, you may know how I felt. A moment before I had stood there looking at a five-foot putt which I had to hole to win the match, for it was reasonably certain that that hole would settle matters. After Chick holed his putt, I saw a five-foot putt which I had to make to keep from losing the match, and I can tell you it looked a lot longer than it had a moment before. In my anxiety I stepped up quickly and missed it.

There is a fraction of a second in which I had lost the match when I felt almost certain that I had won it. We halved the last hole. Chick beat me one up, and I think I shall always regret that it was the best match I have ever played. No one has a right to feel badly, or to waste regrets over the loss of a match that has been well played and hotly contested. That is one kind that victor and vanquished alike can remember with pleasure.

Winnipeg Elevator Destroyed By Fire

Winnipeg, July 23.—With a loss estimated at $100,000, fire last Saturday night practically destroyed the Consumers' Elevator Company's plant, a few blocks for the centre of the business section of Winnipeg, and provided many thrills for the hundreds of spectators attracted by the flames which illuminated the district.

Grain, including oats, wheat and barley, valued at $50,000, was destroyed, while the damage to the building was estimated at another $50,000.

DUKE'S ADVICE TO BACHELORS

The Duke of York, speaking at a gathering of the Highland Society in London, referred to "things of importance" which had happened since he addressed them six years ago. "I at least can claim that since I was last here I have created a new tie between the society and myself, because I have married a Scottish wife and become the father of a daughter in whose veins flows a large amount of Scottish blood. May I venture to suggest to those gentlemen here who may still be bachelors that they cannot do better than follow my example."

Traffic problems are not new. More than 300 years ago congested London's narrow streets that the government had to take control.

STOCKS TURN EASY ON B.C. MARKET

Vancouver, July 23.—Trading on the Vancouver Stock Exchange this morning was in reduced volume. Buying orders predominated but the market experienced a quiet spell. Big Missouri, while still the heaviest trader on the board today was reactionary. Opening at 64 1/2, it gradually sank to a close at 62, a net decline from Saturday of 2 1/2 cents.

Pend Oreille slipped back from Saturday's close at 14.90 to close at 14.25. Grandview held at around 24 1/2, little changed.

Premier ranged from 2.28 to 2.30 on light sales, while Porter-Idaho gained a point to close at 75. Cork Province was up one to close at 34 with a moderate turnover and Goldcorp gained another fraction to a high of 94 1/2.

Kootenay Florence had a uniform price of 27, up a fraction from Saturday. Lucky Jim at 33 was unchanged.

BIG POWER PLAN IN SASKATCHEWAN

Regina, July 23.—Reporting unequivocally in favor of government ownership and operation of the production and distribution of electrical energy in Saskatchewan, the Provincial Power Commission recommends the immediate purchase of the municipal plants at Regina, Moose Jaw and Saskatoon as the initial step in the development of a provincial scheme.

The commission's plan envisages a capital investment of $6,700,000, of which $5,500,000 would be needed immediately and the balance of $1,200,000 in 1929 to meet a predicted consumption of 150,000,000 kilowatt hours. The commission's report was made public Saturday.

Australia Is Sending Currants to Canada

Ottawa, July 21.—Shipments of 800 long tons of Australian currants were allocated by the Commonwealth Dried Fruit Export Control Board to Canada in June, according to the Canadian trade commissioner at Melbourne.

He states the disastrous season has made it difficult to fill all orders received from Canada.

SELLERS TO-DAY RULE TORONTO MARKET

Toronto, July 23.—(By R. F. Castle)—The Standard Mining Exchange was the scene of greater activity to-day than has occurred for some time. Total volume was 1,322,254 shares, but most of this was on the selling side and the list showed a long line of losses.

Amulet opened at 450 and sold down to 425 later recovering to 430-435, closing at 435 for a loss of ten points. Bedford was firmer, opening 28, and selling up to 4 1/2, it closed for a net gain of three points at 40-42 1/2.

Bigwood was weak and off 4 1/2 at 62-64.

Under small trading, Hollinger was weak selling from 117 1/2 down to 114 for a loss of ten points. Jackson Manion was firmer, opening at 86, but after selling up to 93 reacted again to 86-88.

After selling from 131-142 for the past few days, Malarie broke in sympathy with the rest of the board to 136 and lost three points to 137-138. McIntyre stood at 22 1/2, at the close.

Big Missouri was softer and lost three points.

Noranda was the recipient of heavy trading again to-day, opening at 57 1/2 and within the first half hour broke to 56 1/2, but later rallied to 58 1/2.

It was unable to hold the price and broke to 57 at the close, losing 1 1/2 at 56 1/2-57.

Sheritt-Gordon was weak again, opening at 705 and selling down to 685 for a loss of twenty-five points at 675.

Sudbury Basin at 500 met heavy selling all through the session, losing 1.02 at 95-960 at close.

Tek was again weak, losing fifteen points and being offered 950 at the close.

Manidy was one of the few firm spots on the board and was up seven.

STOCKS TURN EASY ON B.C. MARKET

Vancouver, July 23.—Trading on the Vancouver Stock Exchange this morning was in reduced volume. Buying orders predominated but the market experienced a quiet spell. Big Missouri, while still the heaviest trader on the board today was reactionary. Opening at 64 1/2, it gradually sank to a close at 62, a net decline from Saturday of 2 1/2 cents.

Pend Oreille slipped back from Saturday's close at 14.90 to close at 14.25. Grandview held at around 24 1/2, little changed.

Premier ranged from 2.28 to 2.30 on light sales, while Porter-Idaho gained a point to close at 75. Cork Province was up one to close at 34 with a moderate turnover and Goldcorp gained another fraction to a high of 94 1/2.

Kootenay Florence had a uniform price of 27, up a fraction from Saturday. Lucky Jim at 33 was unchanged.

FIELD TO MILL

Many grains are used for bread. When people can afford it, they generally prefer wheat, but many other grains are eaten. Corn, rye, oats, millet, barley, durra and rice are all ground up and used for making bread. Here men are employed in plowing land for wheat in the northwest, which raises most of the wheat we use and export.

Here is an ordinary reaper in action. Sometimes four or five are hitched to a tractor, which does the work much more quickly.

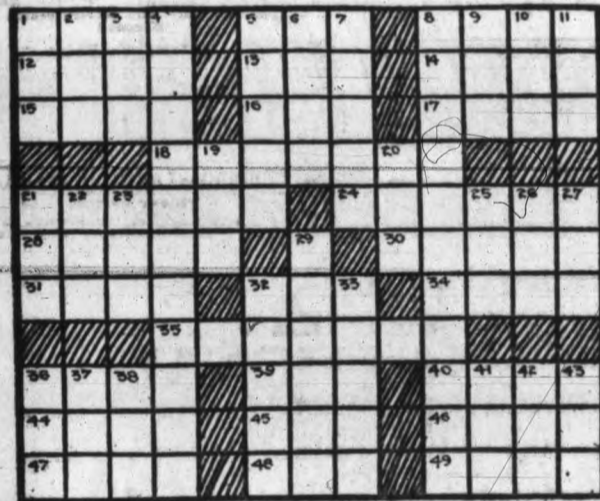

This threshing machine separates the wheat kernels from the straw or chaff. Through the great pipe the chaff is blown into a great stack.

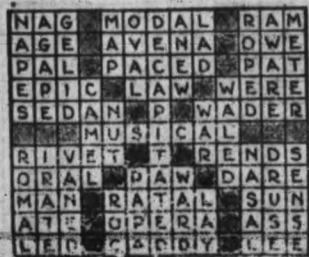

In the great wheat raising sections sights like this are common. The wheat has been weighed and the bags sewed up. Horses, or a traction engine, draw it to the railroad. It may be ground into flour there, or may be taken to a mill elsewhere, or perhaps may cross the ocean. The motor truck has supplanted the horse in most big farm districts.

To-morrow's Horoscope

TUESDAY, JULY 24, 1928

Again good and evil planetary as-which interprets the stars as posted in to-day's horoscope. The morning should be a rarely auspicious time for sailing on long journeys. It is a lucky time to begin a vacation. This is a rule making for foresight every sort will be widespread, for active rather than the objective mental processes. A London astrologer prognosticates for a vice-president of the United States unexpected honors two years hence. Agitation regarding beverages of every sort will be widespread, for cially prominent in the public mind while this configuration prevails. The death of a ruler much in the public eye is prognosticated and it will have a far-reaching effect, astrologers prophesy. The evening of this day is not propitious for men who desire places in the sun or for those who seek to forward their interests. By the same sign the rule is not favorable to successful campaign work for nominees may be exacting and unappreciative. There is also success predicted for women lawyers, who will obtain high places in diplomacy.

Persons whose birthdays it is may have small difficulties in the coming year, but they are likely to have much happiness. Children born on this day probably will be natural leaders. The subject of this sign are usually firm and decided by nature. (Copyright, 1928.)

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

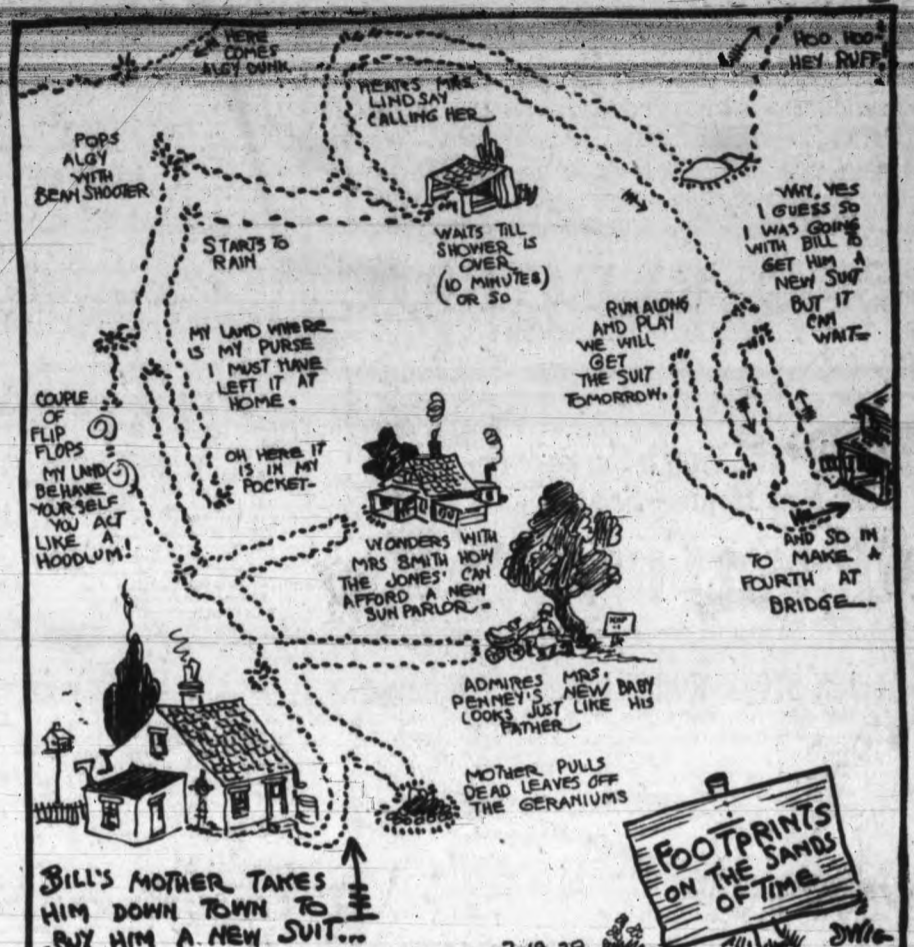

ALAS JASON, LIKE NAPOLEON ON ST. HELENA, I HAVE BEEN LEFT ALONE BY THOSE WHO MOST ENJOYED THE FAVOR OF COURT POMPS AND GLORY! THE KNAVES OF THIS HOUSE EXCLUDED ME IN THEIR VACATION, SO PACK MY WARDROBE, AND TONIGHT WE LEAVE FOR SOME BEACH RESORT WHERE I MAY REST A FORTNIGHT FROM MY STRENUOUS DUTIES!

AT'S WHUT I ALUS SAY TO M'SEF MISTAH MAJOR, YOU NEEDS A REST! Y'KNOW WHUT DAT MAN SHAKESPEARE SAYS, "ALL WORK AN' NO PLAY MAKES A DULL RAZOR," AN' HE KNEW YAS SUH, DATS WHY HE GROWED A BEARD!

ELLA CINDERS—Now Comes Courage

Mr. Cummings proposed to Ella, as you know, but she thinks a good husband should be honest, truthful, brave, and humorous. So she's testing him—has passed the first two tests.

WELL, IT'S SECOND DOWN AND TWO YARDS TO GO IN THE CUMMINGS-CUPID GAME! HE TACKLED MY TESTS, AND MADE YARDAGE EACH TIME! HE'S AS HONEST AS A REALLY REFORMED BURGLAR, AND AS TRUTHFUL AS YOUR BEST FRIEND!

NOW, THE NEXT TEST IS TO DISCOVER HOW BRAVE HE IS! MANY A MAN WHO'S A HERO ON THE GOLF LINKS IS JUST A DUFFER AT HOME, AND THE MAN I MARRY MUSTN'T BE AFRAID OF ANYTHING—EXCEPT ME!

IT WOULDN'T HAVE BEEN HARD TO TRY COURAGE IN DAYS OF OLD WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD, AND A MAN USED A CAN-OPENER TO CHANGE HIS CLOTHES! BUT NOWADAYS THE BRAVEST THING A MAN CAN DO IS TRUMP HIS PARTNER'S ACE WITHOUT TURNING PALE!

What about it? Do you think Mr. Cummings is brave? Ella will soon find out!

KID SNEEZE, YOU CAN TELL GENE THERE'LL BE NO ROAD WORK FOR ME TODAY. HO HUM.

BUT YOU'RE ONE OF HIS TRAINERS. ARE YOU SICK?

NO! I'M JUST EXHAUSTED. I DID ENOUGH ROAD WORK LAST NIGHT TO LAST ME A WEEK.

DEAR ME! AND MY INTENTIONS WERE SO GOOD WHEN I WENT TO BED AT NINE O'CLOCK.

THEN WHAT POSSESSED YOU TO GET UP AND RUN?

I GOT TO DREAMING. I DREAMED I WAS A HORSE AND I RAN AND RAN, AND WHEN I WOKE UP I WAS 17 MILES FROM HOME AT TWO A.M.

AND OVER SUCH ROADS. HOW IN THE WORLD DID YOU GET BACK HERE?

I LAID DOWN, WENT TO SLEEP AND DREAMED I WAS A HORSE AGAIN AND RAN BACK.
